EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

BLESSED is the man who knows when and where he is to take his summer vacation.

THE cholera scare in Egypt brings to mind the opinion of many eminent medical men that in all epidemics more people actually succumb to fright than to the malady itself. Of the forty-seven persons whose deaths were reported in one day at Damietta, probably one-half contracted the symptoms of the fatal disease through a highly-strung imagination and the nervous prostration attending extreme terror.

THE necessity forced upon the national government of abolishing all the Territorial signal stations on account of the failure of Congress to provide money for them shows the unfortunate influence in colonial affairs of partisan clap-trap demagogism and narrow-minded parsimony. Those signal stations in the remote Territories are very useful in calculating the course of storms and warning the populous States in advance of their visitation.

THE people of Pittsburg have reason to feel very sore over the action of Governor Pattison in vetoing their street paving bill. The original bill prepared in that city was vetoed in the early days of the session, and Governor Pattison dictated the kind of a bill he would sign. This was prepared and passed, and then the Governor reversed himself and vetoed his own bill, so important to the Pittsburg people. Playing fast and loose is playing false, and the Governor is to be pitied for his display of weakness.

THE four collectors of internal revenue in Pennsylvania who lose their offices by the consolidation of the revenue districts may be disposed to murmur at the necessity which decreed that they should be the ones to go, but the consolidation was demanded by the reduction in the amount of revenues which has taken place since the present districts were created. It is said to be the policy of the Administration to remove officers who have been longest in service—a policy kindly adopted in order to make the enforced retirement as easy as possible.

MISSOURI allows each town in the State to fix the rates for sales of liquor at very high figures. Fulton, a place of about three thousand people, charges $1500 for a license, the liquor dealer paying other taxes besides. Yet at this high rate Fulton has four saloons, all of them prosperous. The community would seem to be unanimous in favor of drinking, judging from the prosperity of four saloons in such a small place, in which case the people are simply taxing themselves through the license fees. It is the consumers who ultimately pay the tax. There is this advantage about high license fees however: They concentrate the business and so bring it more readily under control.

OLIVER DALRYMPLE, the Dakota wheat king, has been interviewed by a reporter, relative to the prospects for northwestern wheat growers. In Dakota, he says, an enormous crop of spring wheat has been planted, the acreage sown in the territory being at least 50 per cent. greater than last year. The harvest prospects he pronounces as better now than they were at this time last year, and an increase in the average yield per acre will not surprise him. Within the last few weeks he has passed through a large part of Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin, and, basing his opinion upon what he has seen himself, states that the condition of the spring wheat generally in the States named is very good.

The Ohio Law.

In passing upon the constitutionality of the Scott law, the Supreme Court of Ohio has rendered a decision in the interest of public morals. The law makes a distinction between the traffic in fermented and in distilled liquors. Though this will not possibly satisfy the extremists on either hand, it is a rational distinction, and actually exists whether recognized by a specific law or not. But the features of the law which most commend it to the people relate to the taxation of the traffic in the interest of its victims. The rates of license are fixed high, comparatively speaking, the effect of which will be to lessen the number of what are called one-horse gin-mills, and to all except the proprietors of such establishments it will appear a step in the right direction.

The influence of these gin-mills is most pernicious. It is not necessary to present an array of evidence on paper to demonstrate this, because every reflecting man is hourly brought face to face with the dreadful effects of the gin-mill. Were every truthful man placed on the stand and required to give his testimony under oath, not one would dare to swear that he regarded the gin-mill a power in the interest of public morality. The majority of reputable men if compelled to testify would say that were every dram-shop of the low-down order wiped out of existence life and property would be much more secure, and our almshouses and penal institutions be greatly depopulated. There is not a judge on the bench who does not testify to this effect when he testifies at all. Under such circumstances a law which restricts the traffic to a few men who have some reputation to lose, and who will not consider every reeling man an addition to his resources, must be regarded with favor by all good citizens.

The Scott law makes the vender of liquors in general pay an annual license of two hundred dollars. It makes the written consent of the owner of the premises absolutely necessary to the grant of a license. And the license must be paid when due, else a twenty per cent. penalty is laid upon the seller. One-quarter of the license money goes to the poor fund, three-eights of the whole goes to the police fund, and the remainder to the general fund of the county, city or village where the sale is carried on. All establishments are to close on Sundays, under a penalty of a fine of one hundred dollars and imprisonment not exceeding thirty days for each violation of the law. The trade regards this law severe, but it is no more severe upon the traffic than other laws upon trade in general. There is no more reason why a liquor store should be kept open on Sunday than there is for keeping open every other store or shop. The man does not breathe who can come forward and give a rational reason why the man who serves whiskey over a counter should be privileged to do it on Sunday, while the man who sells sugar, or dry goods, is prohibited the privilege. And there is no reason why either should be so privileged. Certainly no man who ministers solely to appetite is privileged to carry on his business seven days in a week, while the man who ministers to the necessities of mankind is debarred the privilege by law. There is no hardship involved in one case not involved in the other, and there is no hardship in either. But for the claim of political necessity nobody would arise to champion one-horse gin-mills and Sunday liquor selling. It is not a necessity in any sense, and any political party that assumes that it is, is simply the foe of public morality.—Phil'a North American.

JUDGE HOADLEY has determined to "stick" notwithstanding the row his nomination has created in the Democratic camp.

A Speculative War on the Trade Dollar.

A few days ago a well organized bear raid began against the trade dollar, the brokers hoping to turn 10 to 15 per cent. by frightening the people into its temporary refusal as a legal tender. When the flurry is over, and the lambs shorn, it will again represent a dollar in value, for the simple reason that it is now worth more than the Bland dollar, intrinsically, having more silver in it.

Several of our contemporaries in discussing the subject have fallen into the error, purposely promulgated from New York, of asserting that the trade dollar never was a legitimate coin. This is not the case. It was legal tender to the extent or amount of five dollars up to July 1, 1876, when, by an act of Congress that never should have been passed, and which was lobbied through in the interest of a clique of money sharps, the legal tender qualification ceased, and since that time the trade dollar has been a sort of novelty among coins or tokens. The fact worth nothing just now is that it passed current at par until a syndicate of soulless scoundrels in New York made a "movement" on it. Everybody took the trade dollar without question, and for the very good reason that it is a better dollar intrinsically than the present legal tender (Bland) dollar. There was and is no reason why this should not have continued to be the case until Congress could make some proper disposition of it; and the only reason why anybody is less willing to take it now than a fortnight ago is that a set of money sharps in New York, under pretence of ridding the country of "the nuisance," got up an agitation against it. In this they were aided by the New York banks, which are opposed to the circulation of any money they don't themselves print, and now the cry has been taken up and will of course spread indefinitely. The result is that hundreds of thousands of trade dollars have been sold in New York during the past two days at from 85 to 90 cents each, and at a discount of from 10 to 15 per cent. This is the end and aim of the miserable speculation which robs those who are the least able to stand the swindle.

If there was a general willingness on the part of the people to accept the trade dollar at its face value, the bottom would quickly drop out of the New York money squeezers' movement against it, and this is what could and should be done.

We notice several large houses will receive the trade dollars at par. This will, if others aid, break the raid, and the people can aid in breaking it by patronizing such establishments.

Backing Down.

It is rumored at this writing that the Democrats at Harrisburg are backing down from the stand they had taken on the different apportionment bills before the state Legislature. We state the fact with no disposition to laugh at a party which started the apportionment contest with unjust demands, and bills so gerrymandered that the Constitution had to be all too plainly violated. It was folly for the State administration to suppose that these bills could be forced through under the crack of the Governor's lash while a Republican Senate existed, yet its inexperience led to the call for an extra session with no other than just this partisan motive. Wallace, Wolverton, Hall, Sharpe and other brainy Democrats vainly protested against the call. What is the result? Growing divisions in the Democratic party. Attempts on the part of the agents of Cassidy to dicker with the Republicans for Legislative districts so shaped as to elect only his own friends. An attempt on the part of Pattison to dicker for a Congressional district for its chief outside counsellor—the Honorable James Gay Gordon. Are the Republicans yielding to these overtures? Are they shaken in their purpose to adhere to bills honestly framed? No, surely no? The Congressional bill gives seventeen Republican to eleven Democratic districts, and so justly are these apportioned that the average population of the Republican districts is 152,200, while the average population of the Democratic districts is 152,700. This is not only just, but generous, since it requires an average of 100 more Republicans than Democrats to elect a Congressman. Fair-minded Democrats can urge no argument against this, and discovering a growing sentiment of this kind, the shrewd Cassidy has improved it and made his dicker-proposals—so as to secure advantages within the lines established by the Republicans. But the latter will stand by the bills now reported, and fight upon their merits alone. There the responsibility for the defeat of apportionment will rest so plainly with the Administration that even Democrats will rise up to accuse it. The Republicans are solid; the Democrats are dividing—a condition of affairs not singular to unnecessary and unpopular extra sessions of legislative bodies.

The Work of the County Convention.

The Republicans of Centre county held their annual meeting on Tuesday, the 3d inst. In yesterday's issue we gave our readers the work accomplished by it, which will bear the most critical examination. No convention of any party held in this county ever gave to a waiting people a more satisfactory piece of work. This was accomplished by a thorough unanimity of expression and genuine honesty of intention. We rejoice at the result.

But Republican conventions are not considered of much importance in Centre county. Why? Because the party of great moral principles continues in a minority and can accomplish but little. But we fully believe that an oppressed, misguided, deceived majority of the Democratic party in Centre have reached that stage of desperation and disgust that will render the work of last week's Republican convention exceedingly refreshing. It will be as welcome as a dish of ice cream on a hot, sultry night.

Where, we ask, can a more representative body of men be found than the nominees of that convention? We instance the venerable Christian Dale, Sr., who was nominated for associate judge. If he shall be elevated to the position his high intelligence, just decisions and discreet counsel will serve to elevate the office and add to the respect of the court in the eyes of the community.

The candidate for district attorney, H. H. Harshberger, Esq., is a rising young disciple of Blackstone. While his mind is well stored with the necessary legal knowledge and his experience in practice has been ample, he is distinctively a man of the people. His advancement has been through his individual exertions and against obstacles which would have discouraged many. The prosecution of the county will receive strict and impartial attention at his hands.

S. D. Ray, Esq., the nominee for county surveyor, has perhaps had more extensive experience in the line of his profession than any other man that could be chosen. His profession, we say; and almost forget that he is a thoroughly disciplined teacher and a well equipped lawyer and can bring talents and accomplishments to the just performance of his duties that will enable him to give splendid satisfaction.

The other gentlemen appointed by the convention to fulfill their special duties might receive separate mention from us, but it is not necessary. The re-election of D. S. Keller, Esq., to the chairmanship of the county committee is a compliment to his ability. We take pleasure in the assertion that his past administration of county political affairs was eminently wise; we hope that the one upon which we have just entered may be brilliantly successful, and we call upon every Republican in the county and as many Democrats as are so disposed to aid in making it a triumph.

Appropriation Vetoes.

Governor Pattison, last week, vetoed a large number of items in the general appropriation bill. He presents objections to all extra salaries for chaplain, clerks and other employes of the legislature after one hundred days, holding that they were salaried for the regular session and are not entitled to a cent extra as the session was only completed when adjournment took place. The other appropriations vetoed are the balance of the salary of Diller Luther; $1,000 to the office of auditor general, state treasurer and attorney general for postage and incidental expenses; $1,900 to reimburse ex-Secretary Dunkle for fitting up his office; $1,200 to the senate librarian for expenses in 1884, and $1,800 for salary from 1883; $1,800 for resident clerk for services during 1884, claiming that he will have no services to perform during that year; $2,635.46 to pay deficiencies in public grounds during 1881 and 1882; $1,500 for a new boardwalk at the capitol, and the payment of mileage to any returning officers of the senate or house who were re-elected to office. The governor concludes his veto as follows: "In approving of the remaining items of this bill I wish to say that as to a number of them I have some doubt as to whether they are subjects that can legitimately be embraced in this bill, but not being sure of that fact I have chosen to let them become the law. The position I have taken upon certain of the other parts of the bill, however, will I hope relieve me in the future from the unpleasant task of disapproving of so many items. I shall rigidly maintain the provisions of the constitution as to any succeeding general appropriation bill that may be sent to me, both because I believe it to be my sworn duty and because I regard the provision as eminently wise and proper. The legislature, I believe, will assist me in that endeavor by scrupulously avoiding the insertion in such bill of any doubtful items."

NO DOUBT there has been much exaggeration in the accounts we have had of the arrival of paupers sent over from Ireland, remarks the Philadelphia Times, and it is creditable to the administration at Washington that it has not allowed itself to become excited on the subject. Mr. Trevelyan, in his answer to the question of Mr. Cowen in the House of Commons, appears to make a plain statement of what the British authorities have done in the matter, and while the fact, hitherto denied, is fully admitted, that inmates of workhouses have been shipped to this country, such cases are represented as exceptional and Mr. Trevelyan conveys the idea that the assisted emigrants have all been supplied with enough money to give them a start or else have been consigned to friends upon this side. Of course, if this is so, we cannot complain, our theory being that everybody is welcome to our shores. And yet is it not an impertinent suggestion that if the English Government wishes to get rid of any considerable number of people who are too poor or too infirm to take care of themselves, it would be just as well to ship them to some part of its own dominions. To dump a poor fellow down alone in New York or Philadelphia, even with the munificent allowance of five dollars in his pocket, is scarcely a friendly act either to him or to us.

THE Bradford Era is of the opinion that a "million bar room fights and a formidable rebellion was crushed by the burning of ten thousand barrels of rot-gut whiskey on the banks of the Monongahela river recently."

GENERAL NOTES.

There are thirteen murder cases pending in Mercer county, Ky.

A Jackson county, Ga., negro claims to be the father of forty-two children.

It is said that Iowa City capitalists have lost $250,000 by investments in option.

There are thirteen saloons in Lexington, Mo., (population 5000), and the city license is $300 a year.

A Buffalo minister said in his sermon on Sunday that Buffalo was the drunkenest city in the nation.

A calculation made at the Post Office Department shows only one registered letter in every 13 000 is lost.

It is estimated that the melon crop this year in Georgia will reach 7,500,000 melons, and will sell for $1,500,000.

Digging for sandworms is an industry in which $200,000 are invested and which employs 1000 men in New York.

A boy says in his composition that "Onions are the vegetables that make you sick when you don't eat them yourself."

A cucumber five feet long and large in proportion is on exhibition at New Orleans as a trophy of the producing qualities of Grand Isle, La.

A snake wrapped itself about the leg of a negro boy at Lynchburg, and lashed the limb severely with its tail. It then unbound itself and fell off.

A mother only thirteen years old, living at Rose, Wayne county, N. Y., recently gave birth to a female child weighing seven pounds. At last reports mother and child were doing well.

The official return issued by the Board of Trade shows that the emigration from the United Kingdom for the month of May this year to places out of Europe was 97,663, against 70,626 in May of last year.

New Haven doctors are returning to the old habit of using gigs. Such as have not the old-fashioned gigs use the modern two-wheeler with a top. There are fewer ordinary carriages and buggies in use by the profession now than formerly.

The personal property of the city of New York liable to taxation amounts to over $2,000,000,000, according to the fairest estimates. It is asserted that this great amount is sworn down before the assessors and courts of revision to less than $2,500,000.

The half-dozen hotels of the half-dozen barons of the Paris branch of the Rothchilds are said to be worth 35,000,000 francs just as they stand, and these are, of course, the mere town dwelling houses, without counting the country estates and the capital employed in business affairs.

The Douglasville, Ga., Star says that there is in its county a family of three members, who, "one day last week, sat down to a dinner at which there were one kind of meat, one of bread, butter, syrup, six of vegetables and a dessert. The entire dinner just cost the head of the family six cents."

A sad case of bereavement comes from Camden, Oneida county, N. Y. A man there has just buried his sixth wife. Her remains were interred in the same lot with her five predecessors, who rest side by side. The afflicted husband says he will never marry again, because his burial lot is full.

It is said that the way to fight the cankerworm, which robs elms of their foliage, is to dig up the ground under the trees in winter, when frost, birds and hogs may get at them. The moth that lays the eggs in the branches cannot fly, and anything kept about the tree from January till May, that will prevent her ascending, will do the work.

It having been determined to revive the Lady Godiva procession this year through the streets of the ancient city of Coventry, steps are being taken for carrying out the project. The mayor has agreed to grant the use of the ancient armor in St. Mary's Hall, and it is intended that the pageant shall surpass in magnificence those of former times.

When a circus was in Portland, Me., recently, twelve lumbermen started from a logging camp in New Hampshire to visit the show, accompanied by the wives of two of their number, both with infants in their arms. They had to walk seven miles to take a railroad train that started at 5:30 a. m., and they rode 102 miles to reach Portland.

A citizen of Camden, Mo., recently found a sparrow's nest in the hay-field, and carrying one of the eggs home put it in the clock. Some time afterwards it was noticed that the clock, usually a very reliable affair, had stopped. Investigation showed that the egg had hatched inside the clock-case and the pendulum had collided with the infant sparrow. The bird, strange to say, lived and grew.

The number of serials on file in the Chicago library is 388, of which 265 are periodicals and 123 are newspapers. Of the periodicals 106 are American, 80 English, 32 German, and 47 of other nationalities. Of the newspapers 46 are dailies and 77 weeklies. Eleven of the dailies and 44 of the weeklies are donated by their publishers. The amount expended for newspapers and periodicals was $215,828.

An immigrant can take 160 for a pre-emption claim, 160 for a tree claim, and 160 for a homestead claim—in all, 480 acres of land. Before he can secure his title, however, the land must be surveyed and put into the market by the Government, with protection for the rights of squatters. The settlers far outrun the surveys, so that now an immigrant, to secure good land must become a squatter.

The long-talked-of removal of the fortifications of Paris at length seems to be in a fair way to be brought about, the municipality having appointed a committee to urge their destruction upon the general government. The pressing need for more and cheaper homes for poor people of Paris is responsible for the final success of this measure, for the removal of the fortifications will give a large area to building lots.

Poetry.

BISMARK AND THE PORKER.

On prairie corn, the pride of Illinois,
The hog grew fat and grunted forth his joy,
Dreaming of days when he and such as he Should travel far across the salty sea.

In foreign lands he meant awhile to roam,
Selecting Deutschland as his future home;
There, cooked with fragrant herbs, and served with wine,
He would displace the scrawny native swine.

He meant in time to grace a sumptuous board,
Perhaps the table of the empire's lord,
And hoped, although the notion made him wince,
He might repair the tissues of a Prince.

Bismark, the mighty, noting from afar
The hog's increase, proclaimed a porcine war,
Declaring, with deep draughts of Rhenish wine,
Eternal enmity to the Yankee swine.

The hog, whose ticket for the trip was bought,
Then ceased to grunt, absorbed in serious thought,
"I fear," he said, "this action may delay
My journey Europeward, perhaps a day."

Bismark, surrounded by the best of cheer,
Drank down great flagons of Bavarian beer.
Of one dish only did his Highness eat,
And loudly praised the rich and tender meet.

He called the cook, who quickly reached his side.
"Whence comes this splendid pork?" the Chancellor cried.
"From your estate, my master dear and dread,
On oaken chips and shavings duly feed."

"I had not thought," the powerful Prince declared,
"That hogs of mine so daintily had fared,
For me let such a porker daily squeal,
And give me meat like this at every meal."

The Yankee pork before him swelled with pride;
For very joy it could have sobbed and cried,
As with a Western twang it whispered clear,
"All right, proud Chancellor, you see I'm here."

THE INQUISITIVE FISHERMAN.

Once there was a fisherman
Who went to catch some fish;
He took with him a basket
And a little china dish.
"I'll use one for the fishes,
The other when I sup;
For, if they meet my wishes,
I'll cook and eat them up!"

He fished and fished the whole day long,
From morn till late at night;
He baited hooks and watched his bob,
But could not get a bite,
He then threw down his rod and line.
And vowed he'd go below
To find out what the reason was
The fish had used him so.

The fish all gathered round him,
Each wagging his own tail,
From the little polly-woggy
To the great gigantic whale.
Some fish were looking scaley,
And some exceeding thin,
But all were glad to see the man,
And offered him a fin.

They said: "We have no china dish,
Nor basket snug and tight;
But we are very prudent fish,
Who think before we bite.
We do not need to cook our prize
Ere we sit down and sup."
And so, before his very eyes,
They ate that fisher up!

Our Story Teller.

Sweet Violet Mathisen.

When the school trustees of the town of Cornalbin received from New York an application, signed "Violet Mathisen," for the position of head teacher of the town school's intermediate department, which had been advertised as vacant, they formally replied by post that the applicant could appear before the Board at a special time, if she could do so at her own expense. But the trustees wrote, further, that it was only fair to Miss Mathison to inform her that there were sixty applicants for the position, some of them being well and favorably known at Cornalbin, and that the advertisement had not been published because the Board lacked material from which to select, but merely in accordance with one of the by-laws governing the Board.

Yes, Miss Mathisen went from New York to Carnalbin; and within five minutes of her trembling entrance into the presence of the Board, her success was assured. As she had traveled two hundred miles to present herself for examination, each one of the five trustees thought it would be simply courteous to ask her a question or two by way of formality, particularly as she looked like a sweet, helpless little thing, and thus she was enabled to capture each member in turn. She picked apart 'Squire Bloker's test problem in the rule of three—and it was a very knotty one—so quickly that the Squire forgot where he was, and admiringly murmured, "Well, I'll be darned!" She answered correctly a question or two in chemistry, put by Dr. Pestle, the village apothecary, who never forgot the shop on such occasions. She wound the editor of the Sentinel around her finger during a drawn battle over a grammatical puzzle, and when asked by Schoffler, who sold beer and represented the German population, whether she knew any language but her own, she repeated a "Platt Deutsch" couplet that caused Schoffler's eyes to twinkle. The most obdurate member of the Board was young Fallis, rector of the fashionable church at Cornalbin; he regarded all witching women, as this creature seemed to be, as emissaries of Satan, so to bring the other trustees to their senses he put a few questions of a serious and personal nature; but when Miss Mathisen changed the cheerful yet appealing look of her large, deep eyes to one of deep solemnity, dropped her curly brown head, crossed her hands on her breast and began to repeat the Nicene Creed as an answer, the young clergyman caught his breath quickly and removed his glasses as if to get a better view of this unfamiliar character.

Before Miss Mathisen left the room she had in her possession an appointment as head teacher of the intermediate department; it was in writing, and duly signed by the chairman and secretary of the Board. After she had thanked the members for their kindness and assured them that she would be obliged to depend upon them collectively and individually, for counsel, she departed to look for a boarding place. The members of the Board looked at each other sheepishly for a moment, and then Squire Bloker said:

"I shouldn't wonder if we'd find we'd made fools of ourselves."

"Don't mention it," said the druggist, "for I know we have."

"Perhaps," said the clerical member, seizing his hat in some haste, "if the gentlemen will excuse me, I may be able to assist her in finding a Christian home."

The young rector found Miss Mathisen in the ante-room, among the other candidates; she had not been there five minutes, but she had already succeeded in becoming acquainted with nearly everyone; she had said that she believed she had succeeded. She could hardly understand why—she would never have come had she imagined there were so many applicants—she hoped none of them would hate her—and so on, until each of the disappointed ones felt it was better to be defeated by this sweet little thing from the city than by any of their lifelong acquaintances. And before the young clergyman had an opportunity to broach the subject of a boarding place, one of the unsuccessful competitors for the teachership, but nevertheless a girl smart enough to know that young men would congregate wherever Violet Mathisen might live, had secured the new teacher as an inmate of her own home.

The maiden who had thus obtained Miss Mathisen as a fellow lodger found that she had been entirely right in her conjectures, for the little boarding-house of which the two were inmates soon had the liveliest parlor in the town. Miss Mathisen's faculty for finding acquaintances was simply unequalled; she seemed to have no preferences, she certainly was not forward or in any way indelicate, yet her manner was so full of appeal and trustifulness that every man she met adored her as soon as she spoke to him. She lost one Sunday at church by the non-arrival of her trunks, for which she had telegraphed as soon as she received her appointment; but when on the second Sunday she entered the church just before service began, the entire congregation surrendered at discretion, for although her cloak and hat were at least fifty degrees too gay for the occasion, according to Cornalbin standards, their fit was perfect and they were in entire harmony with the figure and face they sheltered.

For a fortnight the whole town was in accord with Miss Mathisen, who had been known almost from the first as "Sweet Violet;" afterward everybody was almost at sword's points about her. Some young men hated all other men who spoke to her; many young women accused her of coaxing their sweethearts away. Whenever Miss Mathisen heard any of these complaints she made haste to disown any intention or knowledge to disturb anybody's peace of mind; she was only a school teacher and a stranger; she was devoted to her work and she had no claim of any kind upon the time and attention of any gentleman in the village.

This explanation satisfied some young women, but when young men heard of it at least a score of them resolved that "Sweet Violet" should not long remain able to disown all ties tendered than that of mere acquaintanceship.

Among these were Rector Fallis, Dr. Pestle and Squire Boker; the latter was not exactly a young man, but he was a widower, owned considerable property and had no gray hairs, he naturally considered himself young enough for the matrimonial market. All three felt that they had some advantage over the general crowd by reason of their official position, for they could frame proper excuses for calling on Miss Mathisen at almost any hour of the day, and even at the school-house, where no one else dared go. Against one another, however, they were rather evenly pitted, and outsiders hardly knew which was the most fortunate—the rector, who could talk with "Sweet Violet" about church and Sunday-school work, or Pestle, of whom the young lady purchased stationery, toilet articles and occasional medicines, or the Squire, who kept the best stocked general store in the village, and consequently saw Miss Mathisen frequently in the way of business.

The young rector was the first to try conclusions with fate. He made a special call for the purpose and talked of the church having been likened to a bride, because a bride was the most desirable and lovely creature on earth. Miss Mathisen listened demurely and sweetly; she agreed with him entirely, but she dashed his hopes to fragments by going into ecstacies over the theory that the Church should be the only bride of the clergy, for it did not demand and deserve their every thought? As I said afterward to the young lady who had found her a boarding place, a clergyman with only a thousand dollars a year should not think of any bride who could not be like the Church, self-supporting.

Then came Dr. Pestle, and whenever he came he brought pockets full of bon bons as hints of the sweetness of regard. But somehow Miss Mathisen had managed to learn a great deal at Cornalbin in a very short time and among the bits of information digested was, that the town was so healthy that Dr. Pestle had been unable, by ten years of close attention to business, to pay off a three thousand dollar mortgage on his shop.

The Squire was slow but terribly in earnest. He felt that in appearance he did not compare favorably with his two official rivals, to say nothing of those who participated in the general demonstration. He also felt, whenever he regarded himself in the mirror, that his broad shoulders, bluff face and stubby hair were not what should appear beside the dainty combination of grace taste, sweetness and delicacy that Miss Mathisen always seemed to be. But the Squire was a man of resource; if he could not hope to capture "Sweet Violet" by storm he might gain her by regular approach. He would adopt at first a fatherly manner; he would warn the girl—or woman—against excitable young men who were likely to make love and marriage proposals on no sounder basis than their feelings. If in this way he could gain her confidence he might become more successful at a later period.

So he made a special call for the purpose, selecting a moonlight evening, because he knew that on such evenings Miss Mathisen received her visitors on the piazza. He was fortunate enough to find the young lady alone, so, being a man of business, he proceeded promptly to develop his plan. Miss Mathisen listened attentively; she was very grateful, she was sure; she had never realized that in a town containing so many pretty women a quiet little creature like herself was likely to attract any special attention and she still hoped Mr. Bloker might find himself mistaken. But, as for his kind thoughtfulness—oh, there could be no mistake about that; it was such a comfort, in a giddy world, to meet some one who cared sincerely enough for a friendless woman to warn her against the blunders by which she might suffer. It seemed to her, she said, as if she had new courage to live now that some one had shown himself so friendly. She was more grateful than she could say; would Mr. Bloker try to understand her if she merely took his hand and said "I thank you?"

"Certainly—certainly," replied the Squire with manly tenderness; but somehow when he felt a warm little hand in his he extended his disengaged arm, drew close to him the trim little figure before him, and said a great deal that led to a marriage within a fortnight.

A happier couple never was known in Cornalbin until one day a commercial traveler, of whom the Squire frequently made purchases, entered the store and Mrs. Bloker passed out; he looked at her so strangely that the Squire proudly asked:

"Do you know that lady?"

"No," said the man; "but I've known at least two of her husbands."

The Squire turned white and trembled as he asked:

"Where are they?"

"Divorced—they didn't suit her," was the answer. "I'll tell you all about them."

"No you won't" hissed the Squire, "and if you tell anyone else in this town you'll never sell me another bill of goods."

Nevertheless the story got out in some way, and Mrs. Bloker, to live it down, was obliged to remain affectionate and true to the Squire, which was probably the best thing that could have happened for both of them.—New York Hour.

British Desperation.

The British manufacturers are making most desperate efforts to destroy American industries, and capture the American markets, and we are not surprised to receive in that "special edition" of the Ironmonger, to which we referred two weeks ago, as soon to be sent to fully 5,000 American firms, some of the most original fables and which would do honor to any modern Æsop. If any one wishes to know what the fable of the wolf and the sheep means let him read:

"In view of the progress recently made in the organization of the Consular service of the United States however, it is only just and fair to mention the excellent work now performed by the Consuls of that country. * * If, and when, the people of the United States make up their minds to abolish protection then they will be in a position to compete on excellent terms with the whole world. Until that step is taken their manufacturers will not be able, with the exceptions already indicated, to avail themselves to the fullest extent of the information compiled by the American Consuls.

Referring to textile machinery it says:

"Last year three million spindles were put down in America, and he anticipates a similar extension this year. American makers not only are unable to supply the requirements for machinery in their own country, but they have not the skilled labor to produce the high-class machines made in England, which the Americans must have, and for which they will be compelled to give out orders to English makers."
—American Protectionist.

In a recent article on etiquette appears the advice. "Never pull your watch out in company unless you are familiar with the people." This is simply a new version of the old warning, "Beware of pickpockets."

During the winter we feel that we can hold our own pretty well as an average liar, but now that the circus bill is beginning to adorn the wall we feel our utter insignificance.

A Hard Witness.

From the Utica Observer.

"Do you know the prisoner well?" asked the attorney.

"Never knew him sick," replied the witness.

"No levity," said the lawyer, sternly. "Now, sir, did you ever see the prisoner at the bar?"

"Took many a drink with him at the bar."

"Answer my question, sir," yelled the lawyer. "How long have you known the prisoner?"

"From two feet up to five feet ten inches."

"Will the Court make the—"

"I have, Jedge," said the witness, anticipating the lawyer; "I have answered the question. I knowed the prisoner when he was a boy two feet long and a man five feet ten."

"Your Honor—"

"It's fact, Jedge. I'm under oath," persisted the witness.

The lawyer arose, placed both hands on the table in front of him, spread his legs apart, leaned his body over the table, and said:

"Will you tell the Court what you know about this case?"

"That ain't his name," replied the witness.

"What ain't his name?"

"Case."

"Who said it was?"

"You did. You wanted to know what I knew about this case. His name's Smith.

"Your Honor," howled the attorney, plucking his beard out by the roots, "will you make this man answer?"

"Witness," said the judge, "you must answer the questions put to you."

"Land o' Goshen, Jedge, hain't I been doin' it? Let the blamed cuss fire away. I'm all ready."

"Then," said the lawyer, "don't beat about the bush any more. You and the prisoner have been friends?"

"Never," promptly responded the witness.

"What! Wasn't you summoned here as a friend?"

"No, sir; I was summoned here as a Presbyterian. Nay one of us was ever Friends. He's an old-line Baptist, without a drop of Quaker in him."

"Stand down," yelled the lawyer, in disgust.

"Hey?"

"Stand down."

"Can't do it. I'll sit down or stand up—"

"Sheriff, remove the man from the box." Witness retires, muttering: "Well, if he ain't the thick-headedest cuss I ever laid eyes on."

Shakspeare's "Macbeth" taken from the Bible.

You will find the principal characters of "Macbeth" in the Book of Kings. Jezebel in the Bible is "Lady Macbeth" in the play. She it was that stirred up her husband to do all the deviltry he did. Then take Hazael, a servant to the King, Under the influence of his wife. Jezebel, he plots to kill his master, and become King of Syria in his stead. This plot is successful, and Hazael is crowned King. This character exactly suits that of "Macbeth." The minor characters can also be found in the Bible. Of course, Shakspeare has altered the words, but the plot and characters are to be found there. Dr. Halsey, in his lectures on Shakspeare at Princeton College, stated that Shakspeare's regular practice was to study the Bible seven hours a day. There were not so many Bibles in his time as there are now, but although very costly, he had one, and made a daily practice of studying it. I do not know, but presume he is correct.

Though Shakspeare was undoubtedly a great man, I think he is considerably overrated, so far as his originality is concerned. I think he was not endowed with the genius of originalty, but rather with the genius of arranging the writings of those gone before, and rewriting them in an attractive style.—Rev. Richard Lee, D. D.

Deceased Wives' Sisters.

Three of the Queen's sons went to the house of lords to vote for the bill which makes it legal to marry the sister of a deceased wife. The measure was defeated a year ago by a vote of 128 to 132, but it has now passed its second reading by 165 to 158 votes. The hostility of the representatives of the Church of England has heretofore been fatal to the bill, and two archbishops and nineteen bishops have again voted against the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught and the Duke of Albany. The desire of the Queen to have the change effected was formerly thought to be prompted by a wish to have her youngest child, Princess Beatrice, become the wife of Prince Louis of Hesse-Darmstadt, to whom Princess Alice, the only one of the Queen's nine children not now living, was married in 1862. The influence of John Bright has unquestionably greatly affected English sentiment concerning the measure, and its ultimate triumph can hardly be regarded as doubtful. In this country few distinguished ministers of the gospel entertain any prejudice against marriage with a deceased wife's sister, finding no Scriptural ground for its condemnation.

A very shrewd traveler labeled his trunk "dynamite" so the baggage men wouldn't sling it about carelessly, and the scheme worked perfectly, as they refused to even take the box into the car.

Interviewing at Greystone.

New York World.

I have just returned from a visit to Greystone, and I have had an experience which reminds me very much of the day I fell into the front end of a threshing machine and came out with the straw and was trampled on by the horses. Reading in the newspapers that Mr. Tilden was in robust health, with rosy cheeks and sinewy mind, I concluded to go up and interview him.

When I arrived at the front gate of the baronial demesnes, I saw Mr. Tilden down by the house sawing wood. As he stopped to rub his saw with a bacon rind he caught sight of me. Suspecting me to be a reporter, he shouted to a hired man, at work near by, not to let me pass. I never heard such a voice in my life. It sounded like a Novo Scotia fog-horn. A mate on the Mississippi river in olden times would have paid a rental of $25 a month for the use of that voice. I bribed the hired man with a cigar to let me go by. When Mr. Tilden saw me advancing he dropped his saw and started to run. The first thing he did was to clear a garden hedge about five feet high. I lost fully half a minute in hunting a breach in the hedge through which I could pass. By this time Mr. Tilden had bounded away toward the barnyard. Clearing an empty straw rack which lay in his course, he alighted in close proximity to the orchard fence. I am an agile man myself, and as I ran around the end of the rick he took the fence, and before I could get over he had climbed a tall cherry tree with squirrel-like celerity. I thought I had him, just as I neared the tree he saw his strategetic mistake, and with one bound he leaped out of the tree and started for the house. I got close enough to him at one time to shout: "What do you think of the Ohio Republican platform on the tariff question?" but he eluded me and entered the front door of the house.

I chased him from room to room and from story to story, finally he emerged upon the roof. Before he could close the door I was beside him, note-book in hand. This, then, was the end of the steeplechase.

"I see," said I, "that you are familiar with Thomas a Kempis. Will you permit me to inquire whether."—

Before I could finish the sentence Mr. Tilden turned upon me like a wild boar at bay. He caught me by the shoulders, brought me down upon my stomach, and after wiping up the roof with me, raised me in his arms and actually hurled me from the battlements. Fortunately I alighted in the midst of a flower plant upon my cheek. I sustained no serious injury beyond the slight fracture of the humerus, a dislocation of the patella and a slight indentation of the left parietal bone. But the next time there is any interviewing done at Greystone while Mr. Tilden remains in his present state of robustness, you can send Mr. John L. Sullivan, of Boston.

S. PERKINS (Brother of Eli).

A Peculiar Dream.

"I was told to-day that a daughter of the late Harvey Jewell, brother of the late Marshall Jewell, had recently a very queer and unusual experience, and one calculated to make a deep impression upon the strongest mind. Some weeks ago she had a dream in which she distinctly saw an undertaker drive up to her residence with a hearse. He was a peculiar looking man. His queerly shaped nose, which looked as if it had been broken and was twisted to one side, gave his countenance an expression which would have made identification certain. He came directly toward her, and as he said "Are you all ready?" she suddenly awoke.

"The dream seemed a peculiar one, but did not attract much attention in the household until a few days or weeks later, it was repeated with exactly the same characteristics, down to the 'Are you all ready?' and the awakening.

"And now comes the strangest part of the story. Some little time afterward the young lady was visiting in Cincinnati, and went to an apartment in the hotel to call upon a friend. She entered the elevator with others and was startled to hear 'Are you all ready?" from the man in charge. She was still more startled on looking around and beholding the exact picture of the man in the dream even to the mishapen nose. It made such an impression upon her mind that she requested to be let out of the elevator at the first landing. She stepped out and the other occupants went out at the next landing and the man remained. The elevator machinery gave out; suddenly the car went up, and down, and the man was instantly killed."

Prospect of California Crops.

It may be assumed that the crops have now safely passed the last danger to which they were subject and have become an assured fact. Even if hot north winds should prevail during this month they would not produce the effect they usually do of causing the grain to shrink and shrivel badly, because the extraordinary abundance of the late rains has left the ground in a condition to stand a good deal of drying. In some parts of the State the barley harvest will begin in a week or 10 days. The fruit crop is not going to be so abundant as was supposed so early in the Spring, though still it is a large one. In the foot hills late frosts severely damaged most species of fruit, while a shortness of one fruit or another is reported from almost every locality. But this will be in part or whole overcome by the number of new trees that have come into bearing this year.

Fashion Notes.

Satin fans are very fashionable.

All shades of gray are in high favor.

The pelisse is all the rage for children.

Peaked brimmed bonnets grow in favor.

Gold-colored stockings are in high favor.

Shot silks and satins will be worn in the fall.

Faille will be the leading dress fabric next winter.

Large collars, capes, and pelerines are much worn.

Pleated brim and cap-crown bonnets are much worn.

The short, glace kid glove is almost a thing of the past.

Long wristed tan-colored and buff gloves are all the rage.

Hats with eccentric brims are worn to a limited extent.

Confirmation dresses, to be in good taste, must be very plain.

French gray and Egyptian red combine well in costumes.

Lace is the correct trimming for all one-fabric thin dresses.

Hats are worn far back on the head, bonnets tip-tilted forward.

Burano lace cloth is very fashionable in France and England.

Children's muslin caps have wide brims or borders of embroidery.

Waistcoats for ladies are revived, and worn under cutaway jackets.

Dresses all of one fabric are more in favor than combination costumes.

Medium sized hats or bonnets are more worn than very large or very small ones.

Skirts trimed with lace, put on in half-moon shapes, will be very fashionable.

An inside waist of the same shade should always be worn under every Jersey.

Is it Witchcraft?

A twelve-year old girl in the hamlet of Knoxville, Tioga county, Pennsylvania, brought in to her mother a dollar bill which she said she had found. She was jestingly told to go and look for more, and when she returned from this second quest she brought in nearly a quart of small coins. Afterwards the girl picked up $1.25, the money being picked up in strange and unheard of places. Some of the inhabitants suspect a swindle, while the rest attribute the performance to witchcraft.

Travel Greatly Delayed.

SHAMOKIN, June 27.—The storm here has been very severe. The Reading and Shamokin, and Sunbury and Lewisburg roads are badly washed and trestles damaged. All railroad travel is greatly delayed. The creek has broken into Burnside and Sterling colleries. All colleries are suffering. The storm is abating.

He Shoved Off.

The other day a young man about 20 years of age, accompanied by a girl two or three years younger, reached the city by a Bay City train, and after looking around for a few hours returned to the depot and bought some sandwiches for lunch. The fellow was heard bragging a good deal as to what he had done and could do and cities he had visited, and by-and-bye he walked up to the depot policeman and handed him four five cent cigars and said:

"That's my girl in there."

"Yes."

"She just thinks her eyes of me."

"So?"

"I've never had a chance to show her how I'd die for her if necessary, and it seems to me we might put up a little job right here."

"How?"

"Well, suppose me and her walk out to see the river. I leave her for a moment. Some chap comes along and begins to chin her. I rush back and knock him into the middle of next week. Girls of her age just dote on heroes, you know."

"Yes, they do."

"Well, you help me. You pick out some chap around here and tell him what I'm up to, and I won't mind standing treat for all hands. When I rush on him he'd better run."

Five minutes later the girl stood on the wharf alone. A fellow big enough to pitch a barrel of flour over a freight car approached in a careless way and observed:

"Fine day, Miss."

"Yes, sir."

"Nice view of the Canada shore."

"Yes, indeed."

"May I offer you some peppermint los—"

Just then the young man came rushing down. When he came within ten feet of the pair he cried out:

"Villain! take your leave, or I'll toss you into the river."

"Oh, I guess not," carelessly replied the the other.

"Base scoundrel! I am here to rescue this young girl from your clutches!"

"Don't bust any buttons off, my young cub."

"The young man made a dash. He had to, or wilt. He rushed at the big chap with his arm upraised and heroism in his eye, and the next minute he was picked up and tossed over among a lot of green hides as carefully as if he had been glass. Then the big man raised his cap to the girl, smiled sweetly as he bowed and scraped his foot, and he was out of sight before the young man recovered sufficiently to call out:

"Minnie, did I kill him?"

"No, Henry."

"Thank heaven that I am not guilty of murder! Let him beware, however. Another time I may not be able to restrain myself."

Story of Two Senators.

While a reporter was talking to Senator Sawyer, of Wisconsin, yesterday, Senator-elect Sabin of Minnesota, the prison contractor, hove in sight, and seeing the two conversing he at once assumed a startled expression. His swarthy countenance betrayed great anxiety, and fearing that so old and experienced a politician as Senator Sawyer is known to be might let fall some remark that might put the Republican party in a false light before the country, he hedged in between the three-hundred-pound Senator and the reporter and attempted to persuade the former to go off in a carriage which was standing at the door, but the Wisconsin lumberman would not stand any unseemly haste.

"Now don't, Senator; don't I beg of you," muttered the frightened Minnesotian.

"You see," said Senator Sawyer, "we have got things all fixed among the lumbermen so that—"

"Be careful, Senator; be careful what you say," exclaimed the little man with the large head, that carries on his shoulders the responsibilities of one-half of the State of Minnesota, "you know," he continued, "that we can't talk politics until next December. It won't do. These reporters will get us United States Senators in trouble. You must be careful."

"Well, well," said Senator Sawyer, bidding the reporter good-bye, "I am sorry I did not see you earlier."

There's No Use Bucking Against Solid Facts.

A farmer came into a grocery store, the other day, and exhibited to the eyes of an admiring crowd an enormous egg, about six inches long which he avowed to have been laid by one of his own hens. He had it packed in cotton and wouldn't allow any one to handle it for fear of breaking the phenomenon. The groceryman examined it with the rest, and, intending to chaff the countryman, said:

"Pshaw! I've got something in the egg line that will beat that."

"I'll bet you five dollars you have not!" said the countryman, getting excited.

"Take it up," replied the groceryman, and going behind the counter he brought out a wire egg-beater. "There is something in the egg line that will beat it, I guess," said he, reaching out for the stakes.

"Hold on there," said the farmer; "let's see you beat it," and he handed it to the grocer. The latter held out his hand for it, but dropped it in surprise on the counter. It was of solid iron, painted white.

"Some folks think they're darnation cute," murmured the farmer as he pocketed the stakes and lit out, "but 'tain't no use buckin' against the solid facts.

MESSRS. SEABURY & JOHNSON:

Gentlemen—At your request I have obtained in open market samples of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS and Allcock's Porous Plasters and have submitted them to chemical analysis to determine their comparative merits as external remedies.

I find in Benson's Capcine Plasters valuable medicinal ingredients, which do not exist in Allcock's Porous Plasters; hence in my opinion they are superior to those of Allcock's.

He Repeats the Remark.

"Will you please repeat that remark, Mr. Mathison?"

Turning so as to look your representative squarely in the face, the head of the house of Soren Mathison & Co., Pharmacists, No. 1802 State street, Marble Block, Chicago, replied: "Yes, sir, with pleasure. My remark was that we consider PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, now called PARKER'S TONIC, the best article of its kind in the market. Our sales for the last six months tell the whole story and settle the question. The Tonic, like a good dinner, carries its own recommendation with it. It's bound to sweep the West like a prarie on fire. In cases of rheumatism, dyspepsia and liver and kidney troubles it scores successes and wins friends every day."

Hiscox & Co. beg to call public attention to the fact that hereafter PARKER'S GINGER TONIC will be advertised and sold simply under the name of PARKER'S TONIC. We make this change for the reason that unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior preparations under the name of ginger; and as ginger is really an unimportant flavoring ingredient, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the fac-simile signature of HISCOX & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

LATEST TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

Drowned in the Schuylkill.

READING, July 8.—This city was startled about 11 o'clock Friday night by the news of the drowning of the two brothers, Drs. Aaron C. and Washington C. Detweiler. They were two of the best known physicians of Reading. The two doctors, in company with Charles, a son of Dr. Washington Detweiler, and the driver of Aaron Detweiler, went for a bath in the Schuylkill river, at what is known as Lotz's dam, a favorite place for swimmers. All four went into the water. The driver remained in the water about half an hour, when he came to the shore and dressed himself. He was soon joined by Charles Detweiler, the brothers still remaining in the water. They were known to be excellent swimmers, and no danger was apprehended. The night was an extremely dark one and the party on shore could not see the brothers for any distance. Suddenly there was a cry from one of them for help, but not much attention was paid to this, as it was supposed one was merely sporting in the water. All was quiet after this and nothing more was heard for half an hour. Then the son and groom became anxious. They called to the brothers, but received no answer. They gave the alarm and summoned assistence. A boat was procured and three men, including the son Charles Detweiler, set to work with grappling irons. They had not gone far before the body of Aaron Detweiler was found cold in death and in an upright position, as if he was treading water. He was a very stout man. It is supposed he was seized with cramps and his brother Washington went to his rescue and in the death grasp was pulled under water. The body of Washington was not recovered until about 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The wives of the unfortunate men were completely prostrated when the sad news was broken to them. The deceased men had a very large practice. Washington was 39 years old and leaves a wife and six children. His brother was 36 years old and leaves a wife. He served with credit in the army during the rebellion. They were both graduates of Jefferson medical college, Philadelphia.

A Railroad Combination.

MILWAUKEE, July 8.—It is rumored that the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad will swallow the Green Bay, Winona and St. Paul road at an early day, and it is said that an order for its purchase has already been given. The Green Bay officials of the road deny the rumor.

A Storm's Havoc.

LANCASTER, July 7.—A very heavy rain storm, accompanied by thunder and lightning, visited the southern and eastern sections of this county last evening. It extended from Safe Harbor to the Chester county line. Rain fell in torrents and the streams rose to a great height. Several mill dams were swept away. Mrs. Robert Law, residing near Kinzer's Station, while returning to the house from the tobacco patch with her children, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. Several barns were struck, but not destroyed, about Intercourse. Considerable hail fell, which did great damage to the growing corn and tobacco.

WILKESBARRE, July 7.—The lightning played sad havoc hereabouts last night. Great damage was done to the electric light station. The engineer was knocked down and stunned for awhile. A house near the Lehigh Valley round house was struck.

The New Hampshire Senatorship.

CONCORD, N. H., July 9.—The supporters of the different candidates for senator scout the idea of any break or material change in the situation to-morrow. Maston, Stevens and Briggs had a private conference and it is supposed an agreement has been entered by these senators to support whoever may lead when it shall be deemed advisable to change the present tactics. The Rollins men say there will be a full vote to-morrow and their candidate will sustain no relative loss and may possibly gain some from Patterson. They will hold a conference to-morrow evening and the anti-caucus men will probably do likewise.

The Guiteaus Again.

CHICAGO, July 9.—Guiteau's sister has brought another action in the courts of this county against her diverced husband, George Scoville, asking that he be restrained from visiting her place of abode and from defrauding her of her property, and that he be compelled to contribute to her support and that of her child and to give her the assassin's effects. She claims to have supported herself and daughter by dressmaking, and kept her child in a boarding school.

The American Rifle Team.

LONDON, July 9.—Even if the question of the wind gauge is not settled in favor of the American rifle team they will obtain the same amount of practice as the English team will. They have been presented with complimentary tickets for all competitions with military rifles that are to take place prior to the match at Wimbledon. These tickets entitle the Americans to shoot free, unless they compete for prizes, in which case they must enter in the usual manner.

Decision against a Lottery Man.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 8.—Postmaster General Gresham has rendered a decision in the Louisiana lottery case ordering the execution of Postmaster General Key's order forbidding the use of the mails for the lottery business, regardless of Mr. Key's subsequent temporary suspension of that order. The order referred to has special reference to the lottery business as carried on by M. A. Dauphin, post office box No. 692, New Orleans, Louisiana.

Guarding against the Cholera.

LONDON, July 8.—Last Friday the populace at Brindisi, fearing the introduction of cholera, refused to allow the Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Surat to land the Indian mail, even when fumigated. The Italian Government ordered the Surat to Spezzia to undergo twenty days quarantine, and maintained the order despite the fact that the only pretext for that action was shown to be a clerical error in the steamer's bill of health. The Surat went to Trieste.

The Coming Convention.

HARRISBURG, July 9.—Not more than twenty delegates to the republican state convention, which will assemble here on Wednesday have arrived. The convention promises to be lively, but the indications to-night are that Niles, of Tioga, will be nominated for auditor general, and McHose, of Berks, for treasurer.

Condemning the Governor of Vermont.

NEW YORK, July 8.—At a meeting of the Central Labor Union this afternoon resolutions were adopted condemning the action of Governor Barstow, of Vermont, in sending the militia to Ely and denouncing the Vermont Copper Company for its failure to pay the miners their wages.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

—State Secretary S. A. Taggert did not arrive last Monday, but a meeting of the executive committee of the Y M. C. A. was held in Association hall after the arrival of the 8.55 train, at which it was unanimously decided to extend a call to Mr. Elmer Crow, of Meadville, to become General Secretary of the Bellefonte Association. If Mr. Crow accepts he will probably begin his duties on the 1st of September.

Mr. Robert H. Powell, of Philadelphia, one of the largest coal and iron operators in the United States, died in Huntingdon last night of heart disease.

The Milesburg Axe Works.

The Milesburg axe manufactory has been purchased from Dr. Coover, of Harrisburg, by J. Fearon Mann, proprietor of the extensive axe works at Boiling Springs. The margin for profit on this investment was so liberal that Mr. Mann could well afford as he at first intended, to dismantle the Milesburg manufactory, remove the best machinery to Boiling Springs, and sell at auction or for old iron, what he should not choose to use at the latter works.

Upon a careful examination of the buildings, the site, and an inspection of the machinery, he finds, as he told us, the works in such good condition, so complete and valuable, for the purpose for which they were erected, that it would be almost an outrage to dismantle and remove them. If a capital of from thirty to forty thousand dollars could be secured, under a limited partnership arrangement, with no salaried officers, all the partners doing what they could for the general welfare of the concern, we have no doubt, from Mr. Mann's statements, that the Milesburg axe works would pay good dividends. With a board of directors controling the general policy of the company, the manufacturing department being placed under Mr. Mann's supervision, he would himself take a large portion of the stock and give the works his personal attention. That these new works, supplied as they are with the best machinery mechanism affords, thus coupled with a reputation acquired by four generations of axe makers, will pay from the inception of such a partnership, can hardly admit of a doubt. That the community would be largely benefited every one must acknowledge. Thus at their doors our capitalists have an opportunity for a safe and profitable investment, which we believe will be promptly embraced.

Oppressors of the Poor.

The recent action of the Lycoming Fire Insurance Company's attorneys in this place, in entering suit against a number of the policy holders who are least able to pay, is looked upon by the people of the community as an unwarrantable proceeding—yea, more, an outrage. Men who will thus persistently seek to oppress their neighbors, by forcing them into payment of unjust claims against them, do not deserve a very large share of the respect of their fellow townsmen; and judging from remarks we hear on all sides this is the general feeling in regard to the matter. To speak plain, this action of the company's attorneys in Bellefonte is simply an attempt at wholesale robbery, and one would not suppose that a man who had the interests of his neighbors at heart, would engage in such a dishonest course simply for the sake of individual gain. What will be the result of this contest no one can tell, but every man, of honest convictions, recognizes the policy holders side of the question as the side of the right, and hopes to see these human leeches routed.

—Thursday evening, June 28, the commandery of Knights Templar of this place held a meeting which took the form of a reception to Rev. John Hewitt, who was recently elected Grand Prelate of the Grand Commandery of Pennsylvania. He was presented with a magnificent gold uniform and gold sword by the commandery here. The present is one of the most costly and beautiful ever made on such an occasion. J. L. Spangler, Esq., made the presentation speech which was an admirable effort and was responded to in the most fitting terms that Rev. Hewitt could command under the circumstances. The occasion was one that will long be remembered by the Knights Templar of this place.

—The woodcock season opened July 4th and found at least four of Bellefonte's wing shots in the woods in search of the wary bird. The party consisted of Messrs. Wilkinson, Foster, Valentine and Clements, a jolly set and all game shots. Mr. Clements bagged five birds and the balance of the party about a dozen between them, although Geo. Gross says several of them were meadow larks. The birds were shy and quick to take alarm, and not as numerous as it was expected to find them. Theodore Deschner and Isaac Thomas went out the following day, but did not meet with much success, only one bird being taken.

—Mr. William Burnside, of this place, presented us, a few days since, with an interesting relic, being nothing less than an oak leaf plucked from the tree near which General Grant stood when he received his commission as Brigadier General. This tree is located on the property of Judge Emerson, at Ironton, Mo., which historic spot was recently visited by Mr. Burnside's father, who is now in the West.

Death of John T. Clark.

It is with much regret we record the death on Friday, June 22, at 5 o'clock p. m., of Mr. John T. Clark, who resided near Eagleville, this county. He became ill on Friday, June 1, and for three weeks suffered acutely. We understand that he was born in the vicinity of the place where he lived and died. He was a blacksmith by trade and by industry and efficiency built up a large business and amassed considerable money. Six children were the result of a happy union, all of whom survive, and all but one of whom have reached the age of maturity. His wife is still living to mourn his death, which she will feel more severely as she has lately been in delicate health. Mrs Clark was a devoted member of and a prominent class leader in the Methodist church and also a member of the Odd Fellows lodge. He was 65 years and 5 months of age.

The last sad ceremonies were performed over his remains in his late residence on Sunday, June 24, a very large assemblage of relatives, friends and acquaintances uniting to pay him the respect due the honored dead, Rev. Crosthwaite preaching the funeral sermon. The mourning family have our sincerest condolence in this their hour of supreme affliction

Resist Robbery.

Victims of the Lycoming Fire Insurance fraud should see John G. Love, Esq., and join in a united effort of resistance to this band of robbers. Facts in our possession warrant the belief that this outrage upon the people can be successfully met, therefore we advise all the policyholders to resist these unjust assessments. Those who do not may expect to pay every dollar of their premium notes before they see the end of this outrageous business and in addition one per cent. on the amount insured. The mistake that was made two years ago was that the board of officers were not all arrested for perjury and conspiracy to defraud, and the lawyers on the committee that were sent from Bellefonte to investigate the affairs of the company who came home and reported that the officers of the company had made false reports for years, and then solicited the job of collecting these unjust assessments, should have been prosecuted for joining the conspiracy. Their action in trying to fill their pockets by fees for these collections at the expense of their neighbors will not help their business in the future or add any lustre to their characters.

—The attorneys of the defunct Lycoming Fire Insurance company are making another attempt to force the payment of assessments held against the old policy-holders. As usual the parties that have been sued this time belong to the poorer class, no pressure being brought to bear upon those who are abundantly able to pay. From this it would appear that the attorneys had entered into some sort of an arrangement with the wealthy policyholders, whereby the latter are to be relieved from all obligations in the matter by agreeing not to use their money and influence against the company. If such is the case the company's attorneys in this place are pursuing a most despicable course and should receive the censure of every fair-minded citizen. They would occupy a much more commendable position as defenders of the interests of their fellow-citizens, rather than seek to oppress them by forcing the payment of these unjust assessments.

—Miss Sheffler, of Pleasant Gap, who carries on the dressmaking business in partnership with Miss Harrison at Howard, was struck by lightning during the severe storm on Friday afternoon. The flash glanced along one of the fingers of her left hand, tearing a gold ring which she wore into three pieces. It rendered her unconscious and at last accounts she had not yet fully recovered from the effects of the shock. No other traces of the electric current were visible in the room which she occupied. It is supposed the steel needle attracted the flash to her hand.

—Charles McKay Calloway, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Calloway, died of diphtheria on Wednesday, June 3, at the home of its parents near Baltimore, Md. The remains were brought to this place on the 5 p. m. train on the 4th instant, for interment. Mrs. Calloway was formerly Miss Lizzie Bush and her numerous friends here deeply sympathize with her in the loss of her little babe.

—That unfortunate telephone line to State College has met with another unlucky accident. It seems to be a favorite target for all the lightning that visits this section and ten or twelve huge poles now lie on the earth, the result of recent thunder storms. The poles were literally split into kindling wood, so complete was the destruction accomplished by the electric flash.

To the Memory of Mrs. Samuel H. Stover.

The lady to whom the following refers died on Monday, July 2:

"Mrs. Stover's age was 70 years, 3 months and 12 days. It has been but a few months since "Death" entered the family and took from it husband and father, and now he has called again and quietly taken away the kind and loving mother. She had been a consistent member of the Lutheran church for many years, in the comforting faith of which she died. Her death was very sudden. When she awoke in the morning she complained of feeling unwell and continued to grow worse until 3 p. m. of the same day when she quietly passed away to dwell with him who has gone before. After her husband's death she longed to be with him and told her daughter that she would soon be with him "over there." She leaves one son and seven daughters, all of whom live in this county, except one daughter who resides in Crawford county, Ohio. She survived her husband but three months and twenty-four days. Her death was caused by an affection of the heart with which she had been troubled for some time. She was buried at Boalsburg on the 4th instant. The funeral was largely attended because she was much loved. J. M."

A Word to Iron Manufacturers and Capitalists.

Newspapers being to a certain extent the conservators of the public good, it becomes our duty to the community to call attention from time to time to whatever suggests itself as necessary to the interests of our citizens, and what we have to say to-day will have principal reference to our capitalists and iron manufacturers, but will be of general interest to every citizen of the county. It is a well known fact that thousands of dollars worth of charcoal iron is shipped annually from the county, fully two thirds of which go to Massachusetts and other New England states, to be made up into screws, cutlery, scythes, shovels, bolts, etc., which, after being made, are again re-shipped back to Pennsylvania to be sold to our people, thus paying a large freight both ways. Now, if it pays to do this (and we think all iron men will concede that the money in iron is not so much in its first manufacture as in the finer grade articles made from it) would it not pay our iron manufacturers to combine together in a joint stock company, with the aid of eastern capital and skilled labor, and realize the profit on their iron, which now inures to the benefit of the New England states, by working it up at home, thus saving the freight and charges which, in a large business, would of itself be a fair profit. And where could so fine a location for such an enterprise be secured as in our adjoining borough of Milesburg, midway between the large iron establishments of Valentines & Co. and McCoy & Linn on the one hand, and Curtin's & Co. and Howard iron works on the other on the line of the B. E. V. railroad, with acres of cheap building lots, low taxes, healthful location and an immense water power, estimated by men competent to judge, at between 200 and 300 horse power. Such a manufacturing establishment there would give an impetus to building that would soon bring Bellefonte and Milesburg together, making of the two one large place. On the south side of the Bald Eagle, on the estate of Joseph Green, the owner of the water power, is a new brick mill 45x60, four stories high, which, with but little alteration, could be changed into a suitable building for a screw factory, and adjoining this is a machine shop 35x72, one story, with a foundry 30x60, all under the same roof, both new, with room to extend to double the size if necessary, while on the opposite side of the race are several buildings at present used as an axe factory, pattern shop, etc., with room for as many more as might be needed. These buildings are only about 1000 feet from the line of the railroad to which a branch could be easily constructed through the same estate. From a careful survey of this property we are satisfied that a company could, from the sale of building lots alone, even placing them at the low price of from $150 to $300 per lot, pay one-half the whole cost of the property, leaving all the buildings, machinery and water power to the company. From inquiries lately made we are informed that this estate could be purchased on easy terms and that the proprietors would themselves take stock in such an enterprise. On the north side of the Bald Eagle creek (which is a soft water stream) there is more than 200 acres of level land lying on both sides of the railroad which is well suited for manufactories using steam power, as at any place on the tract soft water in sufficient quantity for running engines can be had by digging from 15 to 20 feet. Anyone having experience in running an engine can appreciate this advantage of soft over hard water in the saving to boilers.

Now, let an effort be made by our citizens to induce capitalists to start manufactories, build more furnaces, glass works, etc., and let our iron ores, sand, coal and limestone be worked up at home instead of shipping them away to other states, and Centre county will soon be known as one of the most enterprising, as she now is one of the richest, counties in the commonwealth. We have heard of one firm who have expressed a willingness to invest $20,000 in an enterprise such as we have outlined above. Who will move in the matter?

Honors to Lieutenant Hale.

Our portly friend, Lieutenant Hale, of Co. B has been appointed Regimental Inspector of Rifle Practice for Fifth Regiment, to which Co. B belongs. All who are acquainted with Mr. Hale will recognize in this a very worthy appointment, and that he will fill the position with marked success no one doubts. We join with his hosts of friends in congratulating him upon the honor that has been bestowed upon him.

—The repairs to the planing mill pond will be completed in three weeks. Steele is largely employed in carrying on the work and that is one of the most durable substances known.

A MALARIAL VICTIM.

THE TRYING EXPERIENCE OF A PROMINENT MINISTER IN THE TROPICS AND AT THE NORTH.

To the Editor:

The following circumstances, drawn from my personal experience, are so important and really remarkable that I have felt called upon to make them public. Their truth can be amply verified.

In 1875 I moved from Canton, St. Lawrence county, N. Y., to Florida, which state I intended to make my future residence. I purchased a home on the banks of the St. John's river and settled down, as I thought, for life. The summer following the first winter I was conscious of most peculiar sensations which seemed to be the accompaniment of a change of climate. I felt a sinking at the pit of the stomach accompanied by occasional dizziness and nausea. My head ached. My limbs pained me and I had an oppressive sense of weariness. I had a thirst for acids and my appetite was weak and uncertain. My digestion was impaired and my food did not assimilate. At first I imagined it was the effort of nature to become acclimated and so I thought little of it. But my troubles increased until I became restless and feverish and the physicians informed me I was suffering from malarial fever. This continued in spite of all the best physicians could do and I kept growing steadily worse. In the year 1880 my physicians informed me a change of climate was absolutely necessary—that I could not survive another summer in the south. I determined to return north, but not to the extreme portion, and so I took up my residence at upper Sandusky in Central Ohio. The change did not work the desired cure and I again consulted physicians. I found they were unable to effect a permanent cure, and when the extreme warm weather of summer came on I grew so much worse that I gave up all hope. At that time I was suffering terribly. How badly, only those can appreciate who have contracted malarial disease in tropical regions. It seemed as if death would be a relief greater than any other blessing. But notwithstanding all this, I am happy to state that I am to-day a well and perfectly healthy man. How I came to recover so remarkably can be understood from the following card voluntarily published by me in the Sandusky, O. Republican, entitled:

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE.

EDITORS REPUBLICAN: During my recent visit to Upper Sandusky, so many inquiries were made relative to what medicine or course of treatment had brought such a marked change in my system, I feel it to be due to the proprietors and to the public to state that Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure accomplished for me what other medicines and physicians had failed to do. The malarial poison which had worked its way so thoroughly through my system during my five years residence in Florida had brought me to the verge of the grave, and physicians had pronounced my case incurable; but that is not to be wondered at, as it was undoubtedly one of the worst on record. Hough Brothers, of your city, called my attention to the medicine referred to, and induced me to try a few bottles. So marked was the change after four weeks' trial that I continued its use, and now, after three months, the cure is complete. This is not written for the benefit of Warner & Co., but for the public, and especially for any person troubled with malarial or bilious attacks.

Such is the statement I made, without solicitation, after my recovery, and such I stand by at the present moment. I am convinced that Warner's Safe Cure is all it is claimed to be, and as such deserves the great favor it has received. A remedy which can cure the severest case of tropical malaria of five years' standing certainly cannot fail to cure those minor malarial troubles which are so prevalent and yet so serious.

Don't Give Up.

The chances are all in your favor. Thousands of cases of Consumption, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Bronchitis, and other chronic diseases—some of a most painful and desperate character—have been cured in the last thirteen years by Compound Oxygen. If you are a sufferer from any disease which your physician has failed to relieve, don't despair. Write to Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard Street, Philadelphia, giving them a clear statement of your case, and ask an opinion as to your chances of recovery under their new Vitalizing Treatment. It will cost you nothing, as they make no charge for consultations. Accompanying their reply you will receive such documentary evidence of their honorable character as physicians, and such direct and emphatic testimony in regard to what Compound Oxygen has done and is doing for suffering humanity, that you will be able to decide for yourself the question whether or not to put faith in them and the new remedy which they are so widely dispensing.

If, however, you do not wish to consult them at present, drop a postal-card and ask them to send you their Treaties on Compound Oxygen. From this you will gain all the information required to get an intelligent idea of the nature and action of this new remedy for chronic diseases, and so be able to judge for yourself whether or not it will be beneficial in your own case as it has been in thousands of others.

—An election of teachers for the schools of this district for the ensuing term will be held by the board of directors at a special meeting on Friday evening, 13th inst., at 7 o'clock in the school house. A janitor for each school building will be chosen at the same time.

Business Notices and Other Items.

—Williamsport people feel elated over a visit from William K. Vanderbilt, son of William H. Vanderbilt, America's greatest millionaire.

—Swiss and Nainsook embroideries, laces and white goods, new and elegant lines, at the Bee Hive. 2t

—On the Fourth of July Chief Burgess Fleming entertained his brother, who is a resident of Williamsport.

—If you have not yet begun to buy groceries of Harry Teats & Co. do so at once.

—The telephone lines in and about Bellefonte have not been giving good satisfaction of late. Too many kinds of atmosphere.

—New stock of lace parasols and sun umbrellas at the Bee Hive. 2t

—Good pictures of the great suspension bridge connecting New York with Brooklyn, are given away at the Singer sewing machine office on Allegheny street.

—Excellent groceries for warm weather at Harry Teats & Co.'s store.

—The little finger of George Johnston's left hand is out of gear, the result of an accident on the diamond field. Base ball is becoming about as dangerous as the toy pistol.

—Special sale of ladies' muslin underwear, slightly soiled, at a surprising reduction at the Bee Hive. 2t

—The address of Rev. W. O. Wright is changed from Milesburg, Centre county, Pa., to Tylertown, Clearfield county, Pa.

—The gas company of Altoona have reduced the price of gas from $2.00 to $1.80 per thousand feet. This is $1.20 less per thousand than the consumers in Bellefonte are compelled to pay. Verily, the Bellefonte gas works is a fat concern—to the stockholders. An electric light or rival gas company is badly needed here.

—Young housekeepers, purchase your groceries of Sechler.

—Dentists are now compelled to register at the prothonotary's office. Fee one dollar.

—Best standard prints, latest styles, just reduced to 6 cents at the Bee Hive. 2t

—"Trade dollars received at par—100 cents" is the information conveyed by a sign in front of Michael Levi & Co's Keystone store on Allegheny street.

—Mid-summer weather now reminds us that the equator is a more familiar topic than the Arctic zone. If the next northern expedition will only advance far enough into the region of eternal ice and snow to leave the Arctic gates open we will purchase groceries at Sechler's store almost daily. He keeps the largest and most varied stock in Bellefonte.

—The residents of Lock Haven were in that peculiar condition on the Fourth of July that rendered them unable to decide whether they could celebrate or not.

—Commencement season for schools is about ended, but it is always in order to commence buying groceries of Harry Teats & Co.

—Buy your July groceries of Sechler.

—Mr. John Gares was quite severely burned in the face while employed near the old planing mill pond on Saturday evening, June 30. A charge of powder had been placed in a log for the purpose of splitting it but did not explode as soon as expected. He went near to examine it when the explosion occurred with the above result. One of his eyes was the principal sufferer.

—Choice groceries at Harry Teats & Co.'s store.

—Did you see lovely Luna last night?

—Thunder storms of greater or less severity are of daily occurrence—out of doors. Domestic thunder storms also bid fair to be severe if those who buy groceries neglect to obtain them at Sechler's store. There is no policy so conducive to peace and content in the household as the uniform custom of purchasing them of Sechler.

Notice to Debtors.

All accounts of the mercantile firm of Valentines & Co., which have been placed in the hands of Mr. Bond Valentine for collection, if not settled before the 25th day of July, will be collected by law. This is the second notice to the debtors of Valentines & Co.; let it be the last. j5d7tw4t

—John Hibler, merchant, of Milesburg, is receiving trade dollars at full value—100 cents. A Snow Shoe firm has 500 of the despised pieces of money which they do not care to dispose of.

THE LATEST NEWS.

Internal Revenue Changes.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The president issued an executive order this afternoon promulgating the changes made in the internal revenue collection district in accordance with the action taken by congress at its last session. The order is to take effect on the 1st of July next, or as soon thereafter as practicable. The number of districts is reduced from 126 to 32. The changes in Pennsylvania are as follows:

The present First district is enlarged so as to include the counties of Berks, Lehigh and Schuylkill of the present Eighth district, all of which territory is to be known as the First district. William J. Pollock is designated as collector.

The counties of Lebanon in the present Eighth district, Snyder, Juniata and Dauphin in the present Fourteenth district, Adams, Franklin, Fulton and Mifflin in the present Sixteenth district, Cumberland, Lancaster, Perry and York of the present Ninth district are consolidated into one district to be known as the Ninth district. Andrew J. Kaufman, collector of the present Ninth district, is designated as collector.

The counties of Clinton, Centre, Lycoming, Tioga, Northumberland, Potter and Union of the present Fourteenth district are consolidated with the counties of Bradford, Carbon, Columbia, Luzerne, Monroe, Pike, Northampton, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Wyoming and Wayne of the present Twelfth district and to be known as the Twelfth district. Edward H. Chase is designated as collector of the present Twelfth district.

The counties of Clarion, Crawford, Forest, Mercer, Venango and Lawrence, of the present Twentieth district, are consolidated with the counties of Cameron, Erie, Elk, McKean and Warren, of the Nineteenth district, and Jacob F. Walther, of Erie, is designated as collector. A new appointment.

The counties of Bedford and Somerset, of the present Sixteenth district, with all of Allegheny county lying south of the Ohio and Allegheny rivers, including Newville Island and the counties of Fayette, Greene, Washington and Westmoreland, are constituted one district, to be known as the Twenty-second district, with Frank P. Case, collector for present Twenty-second district, as collector.

The counties of Blair, Cambria and Huntingdon of the present Sixteenth district, that portion of Allegheny county north of the Ohio and Allegheny rivers, and the counties of Armstrong, Beaver, Butler, Clearfield, Jefferson and Indiana are constituted one district, to be known as the Twenty-third district. Samuel M. Jackson, of the present Twenty-third district, is designated as collector.

Twenty-five persons Drowned.

LONDON, June 24.—The British passenger vessels Hurunui and Waitara, of the New Zealand Shipping Company, came into collision off Portland on Friday night, and the Waitara sank in two minutes. Twenty-five persons were drowned. The Hurunui immediately launched her boats, which rescued sixteen persons struggling in the waves. Among these was a lady, a saloon passenger, to whom a sailor, who was saved, had given up his life belt. Two other saloon passengers were saved.

All the second-class and steerage passengers were lost. The Captain of the Waitara was dragged aboard the Hunrunui with the aid o ropes.

The two vessels left London together on Friday. The Hurunui struck the Waitara end just in front of the saloon, on the starboard side. The survivors say that no crash was heard, but that the side of the Waitara gave way like cardboard. They say that more of the passengers might have been saved had a bark and a steamer which were seen near by heeded the Waitara's signals of distress. The Waitara was an iron ship of 883 tons. She was built in 1863. The Hurunui is also an iron ship.

At Dickinson College.

CARLISLE, Pa., June 25.—The one hundredth commencement season of Dickinson college opened yesterday. Visitors from all parts have begun to gather here and the town will be crowded with them to a degree unprecedented heretofore during the week.

The gifts to the college during the year just closing, from Mr. Thomas Beaver, Rev. Dr. Carroll and others, amount to about $50,000. It is expected that in a short time at least $100,000 more will be added to this.

A Little Boy's Fatal Fall.

SHENANDOAH, June 24.—Several hundred children, representing the different Sunday schools at this place, held a festival at Ferguson's Hall last night. Among the children present was Joseph, a 5-year-old son of Mrs. Brennan, a bright little fellow, who climed up to one of the windows and fell from the third story to the pavement below, a distance of over fifty feet. In his descent his head struck an awning-post, inflicting a terrible gash. He died this evening.

Devastating Waters.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 26.—Advices from Chester, Rudolph county, Illinois, say that St. Mary's levee, opposite that point, in Missouri, broke on Sunday night, and the St. Mary's bottom, a large wheat raising region, is now nearly all flooded. It is said that twenty thousand acres of wheat is under water on this bottom alone. From Chester to Grand Tower, southward, on the Illinois side, for a distance of twenty-five miles, with an average width of twenty-five miles, embracing an area of two hundred and fifty miles, is nearly all submerged and the crops destroyed, entailing great loss. To the north of Chester nearly all the way up to St. Louis, the bottom is said to be inundated, except here and there a high ridge which is above the water. Information from all this region is of a general rather than a special character, but it is safe to say that if all these bottoms are deluged as stated, thousands of families are either living in flooded houses or have fled to the bluffs for safety, but that the loss to crops and the general farm property is almost incalculable.

Bank Robber Arrested.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Charles Rogers, alias Rufe Minor, alias Pine, a noted bank thief, is a prisoner at police headquarters, having been arrested last night. Rogers is one of the most notorious bank sneaks in the country. He generally travels with three or four thieves as companions, and is said to own considerable property in this city, the results of his thefts. His profession has been mostly carried on in the eastern states.

Terrible Railroad Accident.

CHICAGO, June 26.—A Missoula, Montana, special says: At 6:30 p. m. Saturday the Northern Pacific gravel train, with about one hundred Chinamen on board, ran into the wood train at Heron Siding, instantly killing eighteen Chinamen and wounding twenty-five others. The engineer of the gravel train was killed and the fireman badly hurt. Nobody on the wood train was injured.

A very Smart Peddler.

TRENTON, June 25.—This morning Isaac Wyzaaski, a Boston dry goods dealer, arrived in town in hot pursuit of a Russian Jew peddler named Harris Sevins, who had swindled him out of about $250 worth of goods by means of a worthless check. Accompanied by the Sheriff and two others, and armed with a capias, Wyzanski went to a house at Milham where they found the goods, but not the man. Some hitch occurred and the Sheriff went back to his office leaving the three others guarding the house. The Boston man, feeling good over the recovery of his goods, invited his companions to go with him and get something to eat. They stepped into a saloon and refreshed themselves with biscuits and coffee. Meantime the swindler, who was lying in concealment near by, went into the house and carried out the goods, which he hurriedly carted away. The county is now being scoured for the peddler and the goods.

Ten Persons to be Tried for Murder

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 26.—Dennis Malley, Michael O'Mally, Henry Conrad, John Boyle, William Phillips, Martin Heim, William Leslie and Hugh Trainer were arraigned this afternoon in the criminal court charged with riot and with participating in the murder of William Briggs, a merchant. They demanded a separate trial, which the court granted. There are ten persons to be tried for murder in this county this term.

A Prisoner Shot.

LANCASTER, WIS., June 26.—Sam Gatlin, a colored man employed on Pat Judge's farm, was arrested today for criminal intimacy with Judge's daughter, a very young white girl, who gave birth to a colored b by two weeks ago. When being taken to prison Gatlin was shot and his death is hourly expected.

Five New Cases.

LANCASTER, PA., June 26.—Five new case of small pox were reported to the board of health to-day. An effort is to be made to compel all residents of the city to be vacinated in order to stamp out the disease, which has so far proved of a very virulent character.

Two Men Murdered.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 27.—William Ray, proprietor of a boarding house at Pullman, shot and instantly killed Thomas Dowdle and George Fox, two young men, this morning. The deceased had lived with Ray and had made threats against his life. The tragedy occurred in the home of Ray and he asserts that the act was in self-defense. He surrendered himself to the authorities.

Arrive in England.

QUEENSTOWN, June 27.—The American rifle team arrived this morning in excellent health and spirits. It will proceed to Liverpool, accompanied by Sir Henry Halford and Mr. Waller, of the British team, who met them here. A warm reception will be given them on their arrival in Liverpool by a committee of citizens headed by the mayor.

A Mining Town's Peril.

WILKESBARRE, June 27.—The heavy rains of the past few days and the bursting of a dam caused an extensive cave-in at Baltimore mines. The residents in the neighborhood are alarmed. At 1 o'clock great excitement prevailed at the scene of the cave-in. It has extended a considerable distance and already engulfed one house.

A Mine on Fire.

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., June 27.—This afternoon fire was discovered in a heading in a breast at the Monitor colliery situated two miles from here. Several men were overcome by gas and had to be carried out of the mine. The origin and extent of the fire are at present unknown. The colliery employs over five hundred men and boys.

Collieries in Danger.

ASHLAND, June 27.—A heavy rain storm commenced on Monday and still continues. All work at the colleries is suspended, and unless the rain ceases to-night ten colleries in Mahanoy valley will be flooded. Traffic on the Lehigh road here is suspended owing to washouts. The losses to coal operators will be very heavy.

The Lehigh Rising.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., June 27.—The water in the Lehigh river here is twelve feet higher than usual and a freshet is feared. The river is still rising and persons living near by are removing to places of safety. Much damage is feared.

Tobacco Destroyed.

LANCASTER, June 27.—A disastrous storm is raging in this county. In many cases tobacco and corn crops are ruined. Trains on the Pennsylvania railroad are delayed, owing to the embankments caving in.

Iowa Republicans.

DES MOINES, June 27.—The Republican state convention met here to-day and renominated Governor Sherman, Lieutenant Governor Manning and Superintendent of Instruction Akens. Judge Reed was nominated for supreme judge.

Farm Notes.

Geese nests should be under cover and sheltered from the gold winds, the exposure toward the sunny south and the place retired.

Florida expects 80 per cent. more oranges this year than last. These oranges are superior in quality, and will be welcomed in increasing quantities.

The prospects for an abundant fruit crop along the east shore of Lake Michigan, in the noted "fruit belt," are said to be unusually flattering. A large yield of peaches is expected.

A great saving in the labor of cultivation can be made by drawing a heavy bush or a smoothing harrow broadcast over the field just before or at the time the potatoe sprouts are beginning to push through.

Skimmed milk is one of the very best articles of diet for laying hens, and, so far as they can use it, it can be put to no more profitable use. Mixed with wheat bran it makes an excellent feed for growing chicks.

There does not seem to be any feasible way of getting rid of the rose bug except by hand-picking. The rose slug is another depredator which should be kept under by dusting the plants with powdered hellebore.

The Sugar Beet calls the attention of farmers to the advantages of hill culture for beets, saying the French and Austrians have largely adopted it. This plan of culture seems to present the most practical advantages.

Professor Sanborn has conducted a series of experiments which prove conclusively that it takes more corn to make a pound of pork when the hogs were allowed to run at large than when they were confined in the pen.

It does not pay to keep poor stock of any kind. If every animal is good of its kind it is always salable and can be turned into money at any time that it is desirable to do so, whereas an inferior one is always a drug on the farmer's hands.

About 50,000 dozens of eggs are consumed daily in New York city, when the prices are as high as they are at present. When the cost of eggs reach the lowest point they will be cheaper than meat, and the consumption will increase to 200,000 dozen a day.

Most Wonderful.

Very seldom do we read of an actual case of recovery, where hope had altogether been lost, to equal that which was on Monday investigated by a Dispatch reporter who had heard in various quarters persons talking to their friends of a cure, seemingly little short of miraculous, that had been performed. WM. LINCOLN CURTIS is the name of the young man in question. He is now employed at H. K. Porter & Co's. Locomotive Works, Pittsburgh. His disease was Chronic Rheumatism. The enormous swelling and pain in the joints of his arm soon produced paralysis of his left arm. He gradually grew worse, his ankles and knees were soon even worse than his arms, his cheek bones began to enlarge, spreading his face out of all resemblance to his former self. Two physicians pronounced him hopeless. Peruna cured him. Page 27 Dr. Hartman's "Ills of Life."

The cross of the Cotswold on the Merino is not as popular as it was a few years ago, except for early lambs. The wool is not liked. The South of Hampshire Down sheep crossed on Cotswold brings a lamb of the finest quality, and there are apt to be a large proportion of twins.

Diabetes.—A Sure Cure.

To this distressing complaint thousands fall victims. It requires no description. Those who suffer from it know the symptoms perfectly. The unfailing cure for it is Hunt's Remedy, the great kidney and liver medicine. This great medicine (which is the only known remedy for Bright's Disease) has cured more diabetes than any and all medicines put together. If afflicted by kidney, liver, bladder or urinary diseases, try Hunt's Remedy, reader.

A Most Remarkable Case.

Dying—yet living. DR. MILLER, of 129 South Tenth Street, Philadelphia, says: "I am personally acquainted with a middle-aged lady in Philadelphia, who had been given up to die by a consultation of many physicians. She was confined to her bed for months, and was momentarily expected to die. In this condition she took Manalin and, to the surprise and disappointment of all, she recovered her health perfectly. Her case is reported in DR. HARTMAN'S Book on the "Ills of Life," 31st page. Ask your Druggist for one, or address DR. HARTMAN, Osborn, O.

Assassination and Robbery.

LONDON, June 28.—A desperate attempt was made in the carriage of a railway train running from Calais to Paris to murder and rob Rev. Mr. Wilchborne, an English clergyman. The murderer attacked Mr. Wilchborne, with a chisel, stabbing him five times. The assassin tried to make his escape when the train arrived at Amiens, but was captured after a terrific struggle. The wounds of the clergyman are very dangerous. It is not expected he will survive them. The assailant is also an Englishman.

CATARRH OF THE BLADDER.—Stinging irritation, inflammation, all kidney and urinary complaints cured by Buchu-paiba." $1.

COMMENCEMENT.

Interesting Exercises at State College—Rain and Sunshine.

Between 600 and 700 persons listened to the baccalaureate sermon at State College on Sunday, June 24. The expectations of all were more than realized. The address was the presentation of some of the internal evidences of the design and nature of the Holy Scriptures. It was illustrated with remarkable power and effectiveness. The reverend gentleman closed by commending the Christian religion to his hearers as the word of God and as worthy of their unqualified acceptance.

On Sunday evening an interesting prayer meeting was conducted by the Y. M. C. A.

The Rev. D. K, Freeman, of Huntingdon, Pa., delivered the annual address before the Young Men's Christian Association Monday evening.

Hon. George B. Loring, United States Commissioner of Agriculture, arrived on the 8:55 train Monday evening and was entertained at the palatial residence of ex-Gov. A. G. Curtin. The two distinguished gentlemen went in company to the College that morning, where at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening Hon. George B. Loring delivered the annual address before the Alumni.

When the weather will permit the exercises are held in a large tent erected on the grounds especially for that purpose, the College hall not being sufficiently large to admit so vast an audience as that which assembled on Sunday.

The "Washington Reunion Association" held its annual meeting at 3.30 o'clock p. m. on Tuesday. The regular address was delivered by Rev. W. K. Foster, of Centre Hall. Talks were also given by Prof. Smith; Hon. Geo. B. Loring, U. S. Commissioner of Agriculture; Governor Curtin and President Atherton. The remarks of Mr. Loring were highly complimentary of all he had seen and heard during his visit in the College.

Hon. George B. Loring also addressed the alumni in the evening at 8 o'clock. His remarks showed the relation of agriculture to the progress and prosperity of the nation. He compared old-time agriculture to that of the present day, and interspersed his remarks with anecdotes of an interesting nature.

After the adjournment of the Alumni meeting about one hundred persons went to the residence of Prof. McKee, spending an hour very enjoyably in the presence of that gentleman and his wife.

The next morning (Wednesday) the cadets drilled on the campus in the pouring rain and at 9 o'clock fired several salutes, making the atmosphere smell suggestively of Fourth of July odors.

The rain, which began on Tuesday morning, continued to pour down in unremitting fury, dampening the ardor and enthusiasm of all who anticipated that the attendance would be large.

Among those present on Wednesday morning we observed Mr. James Miles, of Erie, President of State Agricultural Society; Hon. Francis Jordan, of Harrisburg; Gen. James A. Beaver; Cyrus Gordon, Esq., and wife, of Clearfield; Judge John H. Orvis.

THE ALUMNI DINNER.

It was only a few minutes after 12 o'clock when a long line of gaily-clad ladies and gentlemen emerged from every door and hallway, all taking their course in one direction into the Armory where elaborately spread tables awaited them. Two hundred covers were laid, and almost every seat was occupied. The menu was quite extensive, the eatables being in great variety and deliciously served up. The dishes were placed upon the table and everybody invited to help themselves. A few of the younger students carried around the ice cream and coffee. The repast was exceedingly bountiful and not a word except of praise was heard. After an hour or more was spent in the discussion of this elaborate menu, Hon. Francis Jordan, of Harrisburg, who presided as master of ceremonies, called for toasts which were responded to as follows:

1. "Preparatory education that a lawyer needs."—Hon. John H. Orvis. His remarks were short, sharp and to the point.

2. "The Alumni," past and present," Prof. C. A. Smith.

3. "The relation of the clergy to education," Rev. D. K. Freeman, of Huntingdon, Pa. His speech was both witty and entertaining. The speaker was pleased with the bearing of the students and delighted with the fact that co-education of the sexes was the policy of the institution. He hoped that when his own son should be sent there to receive an education some other father would send his daughter to be fittingly educated for a helpmate to him.

4. "Pennsylvania State College," Hon. L. A. Mackey, of Lock Haven. He was sure that the standing of the College in the Commonwealth has been greatly elevated in the past year, and predicted its steady growth in the future.

5. "The Alumni Trustees," by Cyrus Gordon, Esq., of Clearfield. He as one of the trustees, could say that they had labored faithfully to advance the institution.

6. "The relation of the Grange to agricultural education," Leonard Rhone, Master of State Grange. So many of the professional gentlemen present had pleaded inability to make an after-dinner speech that a farmer might surely plead the same excuse We should not be egotistical. State College is an institution of the Commonwealth, not of the county. The Grange doors were thrown open to receive valuable information from State College and other educational institutions.

7. "What education does for a man," Gen. Jas. A. Beaver. The speaker took for his text a caricature by Nast which he had seen long ago—a book-worm with a head that would wear an 8¾ hat, but with almost no bone and muscle, and a man who was almost all muscle, but whose head would go into a 4½ hat. The query was, Is there no golden mean? In the speaker's opinion the State College perfectly realizes the institution which will furnish a sound education in a sound body.

President Atherton, in giving the concluding toast, was permitted to choose his own subject commenting generally and pertinently upon topics already introduced by preceding speakers. This talk was well received and generously applauded.

Immediately after the termination of the dinner the delegates and Alumni adjourned to the chapel to elect trustees. The combined meeting elected four, viz: Thomas J. Edge, London Grove, Chester county; Leonard Rhone, Master of State Grange; Ex-Mayor S. W. Starkweather, of Williamsport; Gen. Jacob M. Campbell, Johnstown, Cambria county. The Alumni then chose Cyrus Gordon, Esq., for the fifth trustee.

The Junior Oratorical Contest occurred at about 8:30 o'clock on Wednesday evening. At 8 o'clock the large audience gathered in the canvas tent on the grounds, but a heavy rain began pouring down when the question of adjourning to the College chapel was voted upon, a large majority deciding in the affirmative. Then there was a hasty rush for the chapel and almost a Brooklyn bridge disaster might have occurred in consequence, as fully five minutes elapsed before the chapel doors were opened to admit the surging crowd. The Lemont Cornet Band, which arrived early, was stationed in the hall. After the audience were seated, occupying every foot of space in the room, an invocation to the throne of grace was made by Rev. W. K. Foster. This was followed by an instrumental duet by Misses Foster and Foss. Mr. James W. Alexander, son of Senator C. T. Alexander, of Bellefonte, then pronounced an oration on "The Destiny of our Globe." This oration was fluent in language and delivered in a strong, clear voice. The subject was one which admits of all the powers of description possessed by the orator and he took advantage of it. The destiny of the globe, as represented by him, is a doleful one. From all time a cooling process has been in progress in the earth, and the time will come when the last of earth's inhabitants will be assembled at the equator, and finally the increase of cold all over the earth will be too intense, even at the equator, for life to subsist, and then farewell to mortality.

Joseph W. Reeves, of Allentown, N. J., proceeded to pronounce an oration on the "Development of Science." This was one of the best orations of the evening. The speaker described in glowing terms the growth and future of queenly science. He received a large number of beautiful bouquets to recompense him for his admirable effort. Miss Hattie I. Foster followed with a beautiful song. She has a charming voice and will acquire prominence as a vocalist of unusual powers.

The third oration was delivered by John F. Healey, of Morris Run, Pa., on the subject of "Chivalry," and was followed by more music by the band.

Decidedly the finest oration of the evening was then delivered by Milton W. Lowry, of Elkdale, Pa. The speaker is richly endowed with a fine voice, agreeable presence and an impressive manner. His theme, "Loyalty," was treated in a manner that did full justice to it. After an instrumental duet by Miss E. Blanche Patterson and Mr. Joseph W. Reeves, the decision of the judges was announced by Rev. Dr. Hamill. While the judges complimented all they were unanimous in the opinion that Mr. Lowry's oration excelled the others. A song by the Junior quartette ended the exercises.

Thursday, the great day of commencement week, began fine. The lengthy programme of exercises announced to begin at 9.30 o'clock did not commence until a half hour later. An opening address was made by Hon. Francis Jordan, of Harrisburg, President of the Board of Trustees. He stated that he had been a trustee for sixteen years. His speech was full of vim and eloquence. Music was given by the Lemont band and an instrumental trio was rendered by Misses Hattie and Ellen Foster and Miss Foss.

The inaugural address was then delivered by President George W. Atherton. It was very long occupying about an hour in its delivery and would, if printed, fill several columns of the REPUBLICAN. It was doubtless the ablest deliverance ever made by any person on any subject within the history of the College. It described in dignified, logical and unmistakable language the Doctor's opinion of the character of the education that should be taught in the school and the correct mode of imparting it.

After music and a five minutes' recess the graduation exercises proper began, the class quartette singing a charming song entitled "Sunrise.

The salutatory oration, "On the Threshold." was pronounced by Ira J. Laughman, of Altoona, Pa. It was a noble effort from one who is deservedly a popular student and rare collections of flowers, fruit and books were sent to him when he had taken his seat.

The second oration, "A Modern Philanthropist," was pronounced by William C. Calder, Harrisburg, Pa. The language and sentiment of the production as well as its manner of delivery were pleasing. The philanthropist referred to by the speaker was the late Peter Cooper.

Misses Hattie and Ellen Foster then rendered an instrumental duet in fine style.

The oration, "Per Gradus ad Metam," the class motto, was delivered by Will E. Gray, of Buffalo Run. While in subject matter it was equal to the preceding ones its delivery was telling and impressive, constituting the finest effort made by any of the graduating orators.

Two other orations followed music by the band, viz: "National Pride," by Jos. H. Hollis, Lewistown, Pa., and the valedictory, "Contemplation," by George C. Butz, New Castle, Pa.

A song, "Come where the Lilies Bloom," was sung by the class quartette.

Diplomas were conferred and prizes awarded, Rev. William Laurie, of this place, dismissing the assembly with the benediction.

The week's pleasure terminated with a handsome reception in the evening at the residence of President Atherton.

Birthday Reunion.

The following from a recent issue of the Huntingdon News will be of interest to a large number of residents in Centre county:

The 67th birthday of Mrs. Nancy Bailey occurred on Saturday, June 2d, and was made the occasion by her children for a very pleasant surprise party. By arrangements previously made, Mrs. B. was invited to the house of a neighbor on the morning of her birthday where she expected to spend the day, but where it was intended by her friends she should remain only for a short time until things were in readiness for the party. Accordingly in her absence her sons and daughters arrived from their different homes in other sections of the country, bringing with them a bountiful supply of good things of life and a number of elegant presents for their mother. When everything was in readiness Mrs. B. was sent for and to say, when she entered the house and beheld her assembled children and grandchildren, and the elegant repast prepared in her honor, that she was surprised, but feebly expresses the feelings which overcame her. The plans of her children had succeeded beyond their expectations, for the mother was not only surprised but wholly overcome by her emotions. A new silk dress and a pair of gold spectacles were among the many valuable and useful presents she received. A very pleasant time was enjoyed by all and Mrs. Bailey will certainly never boast hereafter that she cannot be surprised. The unexpected but welcome guests tarried with her over Sunday and departed to their several homes on Monday morning.

The above lady was the wife of John Bailey, deceased, of Ferguson township, and the sister of Robt. Goheen, of Boalsburg, and of J. J. Goheen, of Rock Spring. She is the mother of eleven children all of whom are living. Three of the sons reside in Kansas and the others in this and adjoining counties.

Centre County Boys at Franklin and Marshall College.

A valued correspondent sends us the following interesting notes concerning the standing of a number of Centre county boys at Franklin and Marshall College, the commencement exercises of which institution took place on the 21st ult.

"The graduating class," writes our correspondent, "consisted of 24 members, two of which were Centre county boys, viz: Mr. Lewis Robb, of Howard and Mr. R. Neff, of Centre Hall. Again, as usual, the Centre county boys carry off the laurels. Mr. Robb took First Honor and second German prize; Mr. Neff took Third Honor. Both these well merit the honor conferred on them, for they are men of high mental and moral qualifications. The former expects to teach at Spring Mills and the latter contemplates entering the Seminary in the fall. Mr. Twitmeyer, of Zion, is in the present senior class and is of good standing in the same, and a great favorite among the boys. He was elected one of the chief editors of the College Student, and no doubt but that he will make a vast improvement in the journal, as he has had much previous experience in that line. Mr. Stover, of Spring Mills, is in the junior class, and is of honorable standing in the same. Mr. Noll of Pleasant Gap was attending F. and M. Academy, and will enter the coming Freshmen class in the fall. He will, no doubt, keep up the honor of Centre county at college. Thus we see that Centre county boys are faithful and honest workers, and every loyal man of the county will be justly proud of what has been done by them in the last year.

EAGLEVILLE, June 25, 1883.

MR. EDITOR: We are moving along at perhaps more than our usual rate of speed. The very atmosphere seems impregnated with railroad prophesies and propositions. Italians and Hungarians appear to be running a tilt with each other as to which shall be the most numerous and the least useful. The Vanderbilt road is moving steadily, the Saylor road is hastening leisurely, the Gould road is just in market for its share of "gab." Probably it will soon be talked to death.

Our summer schools have just closed and our talented young teacher, Miss Foresman, gone to the North Branch on a health tour.

Miss Carrie M. Quigley has just arrived home from Birmingham high school. She is a daughter of jolly Captain Quigley and partakes largely of the humor and vitality of her father.

Our stores are running on full time and the one that trusts most sells most.

Churches are in good condition.

Farmers are getting ready to harvest the largest hay crop known in this region for many years.

—A big surplus of women is reported in Massachusetts. Bachelors of Bellefonte, here's your Eden.

—The Vanderbilt railroad operatives came into collision with the Pennsylvania men a few days ago at a point near Moshnanon, where the Vanderbilt road passes beneath the Pennsylvania. The latter did not propose to allow the former to pass beneath its lines, and called upon Sheriff Dunkle to compel a cessation of operations at that point. The Sheriff, with a posse of men, went to the scene of the collision, put a stop to the work, and posted a gang of ten men to watch the premises over night. He met with no opposition whatever. This action of the Pennsylvania will result only in delaying the progress of the Vanderbilt road, as it is bound to go through in time.

Notice.

Our collector, Mr. A. B. Steele, is canvassing and collecting at Fleming, Julian, Port Matilda, Fowler and Olvia this week and next. We hope our friends in these places will be prepared to receive him.

—About a dozen Italians are at work on the excavation for the Presbyterians' new Sabbath-school building on Spring street.

—A man named Joseph Radabach was killed by being struck by a piece of timber while aiding to raise the barn of William Shrack on Sugar Valley Mountain, on Friday, June 22.

—The contract for rebuilding the car shops dam has been awarded to Mr. Perry Steele. The work will begin immediately, and it is thought it will require about one month's time to complete it.

—If the ice cream dealers had been better supplied with the cooling compound on the Fourth of July they might have disposed of twice the quantity. The stock was entirely exhausted as early as 8 o'clock p. m.

—Ed. Foster was aroused from his slumbers on Monday night of last week and hurried up town on the double-quick. He was in a state of great excitement and may be excused for smashing his lantern an drunning over two or three late strollers. It's a girl, and said to be a bouncer.

—Harry Brian, a little son of Mr. James Brian, of Curtin's Works, was drowned in the pond at that place on the afternoon of July 4. He had just eaten his dinner and left the house to step on a raft in the pond. This was the last seen of him by his parents. He was about four years of age.

—We wish to return thanks to the Huntingdon City and Saxton bands, of Huntingdon, for serenades tendered this office by them while in Bellefonte last week. Both are excellent bands, especially the former, which stands high in the central part of the state, and their music was highly appreciated.

—An Italian who received a letter a few days ago was observed to open the envelope and affectionately kiss the letter before he permitted himself to read its contents. Now, the associate editor of the Watchman might have done a similar thing about two weeks before his wedding day or VanOrmer even now, but it was the first time in our experience we conceived of such intense affection.

—Our genial friend, R. A. Beck was delighted with the music rendered by the Huntingdon City band while on its visit to town last week; so much so that he was induced to express his feelings in a two-minute speech to the boys from the balcony in front of this office. We regret that our short-hand reporter was not present, because he spoke right to the point and meant business, too.

—From the published accounts of the Fourth of July festivities in Lock Haven, which apparently include separate mention of every individual who participated in the parade, we learn that, in addition to the bands, there were only two visiting organizations in that city, viz: a military company from Williamsport and a fire company from Tyrone. Intelligence received from other sources is to the effect that the entire celebration was a lamentable fizzle.

—Residents of the extreme southern end of Spring street at its intersection with the Lewistown Turnpike were deprived of their usual supply of water from Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock until this morning. Water was turned off for the purpose of making a connection near the residence of Mr. Adolph Loeb and for some reason failed to come to time when again turned on. The Big Spring and a hydrant further along the street were the only sources of supply.

—The contest for the gold necklace was decided on Thursday of last week in favor of Miss Murphy, who collected $104, Miss Brown, the other contestant, collecting over $80. The necklace was the finest article of its kind in Mr. F. P. Blair's handsome establishment. As a mark of appreciation of the efforts made by Miss Brown she was presented with a handsome pair of gold bracelets by the Undine Hose Company in whose interest the contest was conducted and for which organization about $150 was realized.

The Bellefonte Glass Works.

The fires of the Bellefonte Glass Works were drawn on Saturday morning, June 30, at 9 o'clock, some considerable ceremony attending the operation. The Bellefonte Glass Works, which were first erected in the year 1867, after having passed under different managements were considered a failure financially, although the quality of glass made by the several companies running the same was superior to any other made in this country. The works had been idle for quite a number of years when the idea occurred to a number of our young business men that the works could be made a success. A company was organized composed of C. T. Alexander, Hammon Sechler, Jno. Ardell, L. T. Munson, Jno. Anderson, Kyle McFarlane, Wm. R. Teller and others, who thought they could make a success of that which heretofore had proven a failure in the hands of those who had gone before. A company was organized with C. T. Alexander as its President, L. T. Munson as its business manager, assisted by Kyle McFarlane, and C. M. Bower, Secretary and Treasurer. The company being a limited one in capital, met in its financial affairs many turbulent days, because every Saturday night required the payment of at least $1200 in money to the workmen and employes. The bankers and the moneyed men were at first loth to extend any credit to the new organization which to them seemed to be but an experiment, and which would end eventually as its predecessors had done—a failure. We are, however, happy to state that the prediction of the many sceptics has not been realized, and that the Bellefonte Glass Works, under the new organization and younger management than heretofore, has been a complete success. As is customary in the glass manufacturing business, the grate bars are pulled on the last of June and they remain idle until the first of September in order to give the men a rest and to afford the management time to make the necessary repairs. Saturday morning at 9 o'clock the grate bars were pulled. The duty of pulling them had been assigned by the workmen to the management. Mr. Kyle McFarlane and L. T. Munson alleged that they had built that fire ten months ago, and it was the biggest fire they had ever kindled; that they were so well pleased with it that they would not put it ont; that that duty should be imposed upon the board of managers, and upon consultation with the workmen they determined the duty should be performed by Jno. Ardell and Jno. Anderson, the two fat men of the company. At the hour of 9 o'clock a. m. the members of the company assembled at the Glass Works just about the time that the men ceased their year's work. Sam'l. Caire, speaking for all the glass blowers, tender boys, master teasers and others, in a neat little speech, presented to the President of the Company, C. T. Alexander, a cane blown by himself out of glass. To this act of kindness on the part of the workmen Mr. Alexander responded in a brief speech, in which he detailed the difficulties through which the Company, of which he was the nominal head, had passed financially, but expressed his free hope that the Bellefonte Glass Company was now an established institution, that its success was not only owing to the good management of L. T. Munson and J. Kyle McFarlane and C. M. Bower, the financial officer, but to the extraordinary good conduct and co-operation of the company's employes. He said that heretofore under previous managements the men employed may have been at fault, but so far as the employes of the Glass Works under the present management is concerned they have materially aided by their gentlemanly deportment and fidelity to duty and have been important factors in its success. He also spoke of the fact that their gentlemanly deportment and fidelity to duty had won the encomiums of the good people of the town, and assured them that such improvements would be made in the works before September 1, when the next fires are to be lighted, that it will render their unusually arduous tasks less burdensome, and which will insure for the next fire a higher degree of prosperity for the company and greater reward for themselves. The grate bars were then pulled. John Ardell and John Anderson, the fat men of the company, thinking it was too warm, appointed deputies who did the work, so the fires are out and will remain so for two months, during which time great improvements will be made, and then the boys will go to work again for another period of ten months, and we expect at the end of that time to record even a greater success than at present. All honor to whom honor is due.

—Haymaking season is here.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

Bellefonte's Brilliant Celebration Wednesday, July 4.

The birthday of the American Republic was a perfect type of what such a day ought to be. The hot, torrid atmosphere, the noonday shower, the evening sky bordered with dark clouds which emitted the lightning flash, all were an ample realization of an ideal Fourth of July.

The exercises of the day in Bellefonte were as perfect as was the action of the elements, if we except the trifling circumstance, which was a pleasing variety to many, that there was less than the usual amount of noise and the long hours of the day passed without a single fight or even a misunderstanding so far as we are aware.

The wagon collecting eatables for the firemen's dinner, went on its tour at an early hour. The La France steamer, belonging to Huntingdon Hose Company, No. 1, arrived in Bellefonte on Tuesday afternoon, and was followed on Wednesday morning by hose companies Nos. 1 and 2, of Huntingdon, and the Independent hook and ladder company from the same place, who came in a special train. A small delegation from the Vigilant fire company of Altoona also helped to swell the crowd.

Soon after the arrival of these fire laddies the line of parade was formed and as the long line marched through the streets they elicited unmeasured expressions of praise as being the finest pageant witnessed in Bellefonte for many years. The visitors, hose companies Nos 1 and 2, and the Independent Hook and Ladder Company were given precedence in the line of parade immediately following the borough officials and the council. They were escorted by two splendid bands, the Huntingdon City Band, numbering about 25 pieces, and the Saxton cornet band, under the leadership of Professor Dunbar. The hose companies numbered perhaps 30 men each and the hook and ladder company included about 45. The hose carriages of the respective companies were in line and also the handsome steamer. Huntingdon Hose Company No. 1 carried a very fine banner. The visitors were followed by the Logan Hose Company, the Undine Hose Company bringing up the rear. The rear end of the line was furnished with music by the Zion band and the Pleasant Gap band. After marching over a route which included a very complete tour of the town they moved to the picnic grounds on the property formerly used for the fairs of the Agricultural Society, where an excellent dinner was served.

After dinner dancing was continued during the afternoon. A game of base ball was also in progress. A trial of the La France steamer was made near the Bush House greatly to the edification of a curious crowd, who were well satisfied with its merits as a fire extinguisher, as it completely extinguished one lady's bonnet that wasn't on fire at all, by carrying it from her head into the creek where it was allowed to float down with the tide.

The decorations were simple and beautiful consisting of arches suspended across the street near the intersection of Bishop and Allegheny streets, and also one in front of the Undine Hose House, with the words "Welcome Firemen." The Undine Hose House was otherwise appropriately decorated as was also the Logan Hose House. Flags were suspended from various public buildings and private dwellings. All the business places were closed.

In speaking for the home fire companies we can say that they never entertained a more pleasant or gentlemanly company of strangers than those who were here on the Fourth. The home and visiting organizations vied with each other in exerting themselves for the enjoyment of all. The result was a grand and successful celebration.

The visitors departed at 5 o'clock in the afternoon much delighted with the day's enjoyment.

A few fire works were exploded in the evening.

—Our well-known townsman, Daniel Garman, proprietor of the Garman House, is the owner of a very beautiful team of horses which he acquired possession of a few days ago. They rank among the finest specimens of horse flesh now owned in Bellefonte and travel over the road together in excellent style. Mr. Garman is a connoisseur in such matters and the fine steeds which now make up his livery equipment are all of a high standard of excellence.

—Mr, August Sinecal and Miss Mary Redding were united in matrimony in the Roman Catholic church, by Rev. Father McArdell, on Tuesday morning, July 3. The bride and groom have our sincerest congratulations.

Overhauling the Opera House.

The proprietor of the Opera House, we are pleased to know, has at last wakened up to a realizing sense of the obligations he is under to the theatre-going people of Bellefonte, and has concluded to give that place of public amusement, wherein has been heard Beecher's eloquent logic and the button-bursting jokes of Lew Simmons, a general overhauling. The work of altering and improving has already begun, Mr. David Bartley having charge of the carpentering. In order to be able to tell our readers something in regard to the nature of improvements to be made we paid a visit to the hall recently in company with Manager Sourbeck, who furnished us with a general outline of the new plans, which, if carried out to the letter, will transform the old "gymnasium" into a very respectable looking hall. The old benches, which have left their mark on many a spectator's back, have been removed, and the work of laying the new raised floor is now completed. The new floor will be built on an incline, ascending gradually from the stage to the rear of the hall, terminating at an elevation of about five feet above the first row of seats, which will necessitate the erection of a short flight of steps at the entrance door. On this floor are to be placed opera chairs which will form the most important feature of the improvements. The floor will accommodate about 400 chairs, and be arranged in a half circle.

New seats will also be erected at the rear of the "parquet circle," extending from the entrance door across to the opposite corner. The stage, which is in an abominable condition, will receive its share of attention. A new floor will be laid and the dressing rooms enlarged and refitted. The scenery, which is in a very rickety condition, will be repainted, and some fine new pieces added. This work will be in charge of Mr. W. F. Wise, a prominent scenic artist of Philadelphia, who will arrive in town in a few weeks to commence the work. The worn-out stage curtain, our citizens will be tickled to learn, will be replaced by a new one of handsome design, and the Bellefonte public have probably looked their last upon the modest maiden who has peeped forth at them from behind her fan for a quarter of a century. The walls and ceiling, too, are to be beautified by kalsomining and fresco work. These are the contemplated improvements, and if carried out, Reynolds' Hall will approach something near what an opera house should be in appearance.

Meeting of the Republican County Convention.

In response to the call of Chairman D. S. Keller, the Republican county convention met in the Court House at 2 o'clock p. m. on Tuesday, July 3. The attendance was as large as usual and included among the delegates many of the most able and enterprising citizens of the county.

Captain Austin Curtin was elected chairman, and Richard Beaston, Wilbur F. Reeder and A. A. Dale secretaries.

Christian Dale, Sr., of College township, was nominated for the office of Associate Judge.

H. H. Harshberger, Esq., of Bellefonte, was nominated for District Attorney, and S. D. Ray, Esq., for County Surveyor.

The committee on resolutions reported as follows:

The Republican party of Centre county in convention assembled, reaffirming their earnest faith in the traditions and principles of the Republican party do resolve—

1st. That we endorse the efficient administration of President Arthur and point with pride to his successful direction of public affairs.

2d. That we hail with delight the evidences of renewed unity and harmony in the Republican party of this Commonwealth, which unmistakably point to the continued ascendancy of our organization.

3d. That we view with alarm the attempts of the Democratic party to instill into the popular mind the pernicious doctrines of free trade and a tariff for revenue only, and we warn the community against these efforts to injure the industrial interests of the country in general and our commonwealth in particular.

4th. That we heartily endorse the ticket this day nominated and pledge to the candidates our earnest support.

Captain Austin Curtin and A. V. Miller were elected delegates to the State convention.

Wm. McFarlane, S. S. Miles and Theodore Gordon were elected Senatorial conferees.

D. S. Keller, Esq., was reelected chairman of the committee by acclamation. Mr. Keller acknowledged this mark of respect and confidence in a very neat speech. D. H. Hastings, Esq., responded to repeated calls in a speech which was replete with good points forcibly expressed.

—At last work has been commenced on the Spring creek bridge.

Personal Pencilings.

Mr. Clifford Thomas spent a few days of last week in town.

Prof. Wm. T. Meyer will begin a term of musical instruction at Aaronsburg on Monday, July 30.

Miss Carrie Humes left on mail east this morning for Williamsport, to attend the teachers' convention.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Moyer, of Powelton, spent a portion of last week among their friends in Bellefonte.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hoover, of Johnstown, are the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Charles Miller, of this place.

Miss Rachel Humes, who has been attending school at Orange, N. J., has returned home after an absence of ten months.

Mrs. Jacob V. Thomas departed on Tuesday for the cool shores of Long Branch, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Mary.

Dr. Van Tries, of Penn'a. Furnace, eldest son of Samuel Van Tries of this place, arrived in town lately, accompanied by his wife.

Miss McFadden, one of the petite and accomplished young ladies of the State Capital, is the guest of Miss Ella McClain, of this place.

Prof. Yonce, of Lutherville (Md.) Female Seminary, is visiting friends in Bellefonte. Report says that there is an attraction in this vicinity which is irresistible.

Mr. Ed. Humes is home from Houtzville on a vacation. Ed. is on the sick list, we are sorry to say, and has been ordered by his physician to seek rest and recreation.

Hon. Francis Jordan, Secretary of State under Gov. Geary, attended the State College commencement. Mr. Jordan is spoken of in connection with the State Treasurership.

Railroad Contractor Collins is entertaining his niece, Miss Carlotta Collins, of Philadelphia, at the Bush House. Miss Kate Noon, sister of Mrs. Collins, is also here on a visit.

Miss Sallie Bender, one of the bright and accomplished young ladies of York, Pa., arrived in town Friday evening, June 29, and is a guest at the residence of Mr. Lingle, on Spring street.

Miss Kate Schnell, formerly of this place and now a resident of New York State, is honoring her friends in Bellefonte with her agreeable presence. They are rejoiced to see her again.

Monte Ward, of this place, who is playing with the New York league nine this season, is not pitching as effectively as in former years. He is making a good record at the bat, however, and is doing excellent work in the outfield.

Miss Lulu Meek has returned home from Wellesley, Mass., where she has been attending the female seminary located at that place. Miss Lulu has been absent from home ten months, and her many friends will be pleased to know of her return.

Rev. Dr. Hopkins, of Williamsport, has numerous friends in Bellefonte who will be interested to know that he is the author of a book of poems entitled, "Poems by the Wayside," which are now ready for sale. The book contains many very fine poems.

Miss Sallie Hoffer, daughter of our well-known townsman, John Hoffer, Esq., recently returned from the Boston Conservatory of Music where she has been finishing her musical education. She was accompanied by Miss Luther, of Ohio, who is a pupil at the same institution and who is now Miss Hoffer's guest.

Miss Olive B. Mitchell, the charming daughter of Mr. James Mitchell of Spring street, departed on Monday for State College to visit the family of Mr. C. H. Struble at that place. She also expects to spend a few days with the family of Mr. J. B. Mitchell, of Pine Grove. We hope her visit will be enjoyable.

The family of our well known townsman, Mr. William McClellan, of Allegheny street, are honored by the presence among them of Mrs. Kimberland, of California. The lady is a cousin of Mrs. McClellan, but it is her first visit in the East for a period of 32 years. The events which marked her first residence in the West are worthy of note. She was married thirty-two years ago in Carlisle, Pa., whence she journeyed in a sleigh to New York City to embark for California. After a long voyage they landed in the Golden State and went overland from the landing to the city of San Francisco, mules furnishing the carrying power for the trip. She was then a young woman, fair in form and with hair as black as the raven's wing. She returned after more than three decades a lady well advanced in years, a coronal of silver hair having taken the place of glossy black locks. The friends here richly appreciate her presence and will strive to render her visit pleasant.

State College Echoes.

The reception given by President George W. Atherton on Thursday evening, June 28, was a remarkably fine gathering, the guests filling the spacious apartments of the residence and wandering through the surrounding grounds which were illuminated with Chinese lanterns suspended in artistic positions.

Mr. W. T. Patterson, superintendent of the Experimental and College farms, has been connected with the institution for many years and, in the opinion of the numerous visitors who have recently been inspecting his work, is the right man for the responsible position he holds. The vast enclosures filled with growing crops of all descriptions seem indeed a veritable garden of Eden and reflect in their brilliant beauty the wise application of judicious work. Side by side in the Experimental farm are growths of wheat, oats, corn and other crops to which different fertilizers, or no fertilizers, have been applied and which exhibit the results in a manner that must be of great benefit to agriculture. Our reporter cannot tell like Horace Greeley what he knows about farming (to confine our information to that would make this article too brief), but a doctrine which seems to prevail at the College is that it does not pay to spend an entire year in raising one crop for the sole purpose of preparing the ground for another. The tendency of the experiments also seemed to show that plaster as a fertilizer is little better than none at all for crops of any description while phosphate causes the wilderness to blossom as the rose. In one enclosure are a large number of boxes filled with earth prepared in different ways in which various specimens of plants, including tobacco, are growing. This will be a true test since the plants can draw nutriment from no other source than that contained in the box in which it grows. One field of barley presents a scene of such luxuriant beauty and excellence as to elicit the admiration of farmers from all parts of the State.

Numerous fine cattle are occupying the cattle yard or the stalls in the barn. They are specimens of perfect beauty and the intention is to feed them with different varieties of food to note the effect on them and especially the changes that occur in the cows' milk.

—Our well known tonsorial artist, Mr. R. A. Beck, departed on Monday for the city of Philadelphia on business and pleasure bent. While in the City of Brotherly Love he will investigate the newest and most elegant style of banging the ladies hair and will be prepared to execute that much-sought-for work to the satisfaction of his numerous lady patrons. This will be joyful news for the ladies who hold this fashion in high repute and we urge them to consult Mr. Beck as soon as he shall return.

—An exploding coal oil lamp set fire to the dress of Miss Sadie Lane of New Bloomfield, but the presence of mind of herself and her sister enabled them to extinguish the flames before she was much burned.

—A "Band of Hope" was organized Monday night in connection with the Boys' Branch of Y. M. C. A.

Bellefonte Markets.

BELLEFONTE, July 10, 1883.
